THIS MAN KNOWS—TWISTERS STRIKE TWICE

Maybe lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place, but tornadoes do. A. J. Ostrander has proof—the remains of his large tile barn. The same barn was hit by a twister in 1950. Smaller buildings also were destroyed on the farm a mile west of Endicott which Ostrander operates with his son, Delbert. Similar damage occurred at the nearby Henry Kujath farm. (Star Staff Photo)

Mother, Seven Others Injured

PASSENGERS SCATTERED AS TWISTER LIFTS CAR

One Illinois girl was killed, and 7 brothers and sisters and her mother critically injured by a tornado which picked up their car and hurled it a quarter of a mile off U.S. 136 three miles west of Auburn Sunday afternoon.

Dianne Schilling, 14, died in an Auburn hospital a few hours after the storm.

Sheriff George Kelley identified the injured at the Auburn hospital as Nancy Jo, 10, and Sherry, 16. In critical condition at a Nebraska City hospital, he said, were Jennifer Lee, 12, Elizabeth Jane, 7, Karon Rae, 4, Phillip Fred, 16 months, and Terry Sue, 8.

The mother, Mrs. Fred Schilling, 37, of Vandalia, Ill., was transferred to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Lincoln after being treated at Nebraska City.

She was listed in critical condition.

The car was hurled some 500 feet and its engine and transmission torn out and scattered. The woman and children were hurled in a straight line on a southwest-to-northeast path covering a quarter of a mile. Each landed about 400 to 500 feet apart.

Cal Gamboni, Nebraska City motor company operator, who was to win a car with a wrecker just ahead of the Illinois car, said: "The car popped over a hill and there it was—they didn't have a chance."

The force of the twister upset the wrecker and the car, but Gamboni escaped injury and his wife, riding with him, escaped with a cut on her leg. Gamboni helped with the rescue work after notifying authorities.

The victims, he said, all were unconscious and had taken a fierce beating from the twister.

Kelley reported the Schillings were on route to their Illinois home.

Spotted Twister

The tornado hit as several hundred persons gathered at the dedication of the new Auburn Hospital. Kelley, who was directing traffic at the dedication, saw the twister and jumped into his car to trail it when he received the report that the tornado had picked up the car about two miles west of town.

The twister continued north-east and severely damaged the farm homes of Henry Lee Rohrs and Guy Guilliat 4 miles north of Auburn. There were no personal injuries reported but buildings were damaged and trees uprooted.

The tornado knocked out telephone communications to Auburn, according to the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co., which reported lines down in 3 locations west and north of Auburn.

Others Sighted

Numerous reports were received of other twisters being sighted in southern and eastern Nebraska.

A tornado which swept along a 4-mile path southeast of Fairbury caused heavy damage to the Henry Kujath and A. J. Ostrander farms, according to Jefferson County Deputy Sheriff Mel Shultz.

Shultz said all outbuildings on both farms were destroyed, though damage to the houses was not major. There were no injuries.

The tornado swept along a path 4 miles long and about a quarter-of-a-mile wide, Shultz said, causing heavy damage to power lines and trees.

Sirens were sounded in Fairbury to warn residents of the tornado as Police Officer Ralph Thrapp watched it from a hilltop. The twister remained about 3 miles southeast of Fairbury, however.

York, Seward Sightings

Authorities in York and Seward counties said observers reported several tornadoes, but that there apparently was no damage.

The Milford police department reported 3 tornadoes north of town. One touched down briefly, but there were no reports of damage, the police department reported.

The Seward County sheriff's office said a tornado was reported to have touched the ground northwest of Utica, but that there was no damage.

Another twister touched down in a field near York and remained stationary for about 10 minutes before moving on, according to a report received by the York County sheriff's office. Again, there was no report of damage.

Heavy hailstorms battered the Fairbury and Beatrice areas.

Hail the size of ping pong balls hit Fairbury about 5 p.m. and more than an hour later was still piling in mounds around houses. Numerous windows were broken.

Hail at Beatrice was described as the size of marbles and was accompanied by winds of 50 to 60 miles per hour, the Weather Bureau reported.

Thunderstorms ranged across the southeastern quarter of the state.

Beatrice had 1.4 inches of rain in a short time.

Hail was reported 3 inches deep at Hubbell, and as much as 8 inches deep west of the town.

Teamsters Win Philly Election

Philadelphia (UPI)—The regular Teamsters organization, aided by an extensive personal campaign by President James R. Hoffa, won a decisive victory Sunday over a rebel group seeking to return 4 locals to the AFL-CIO.

The official tally announced by the National Labor Relations board several hours after the closing of 4-day balloting gave the Teamsters a margin of more than 2,000 votes over the dissident group known as the Voice of Teamsters.

This compared with a 600-vote margin by which the Teamsters won last year in a similar election later thrown out by the NLRB because of alleged violence. Hoffa did not take as active a part in the first election campaign.

Major Test

The challenge by the Voice was regarded as a major test of strength between the powerful Teamsters Union and the AFL-CIO. Hoffa came here several weeks ago to supervise his union's campaign.

The tally by which the Teamsters won the right to continue to represent 8,400 truck drivers in a 4-state area was 4,893 to 2,550 for the Voice. There were 324 ballots challenged and 17 were ruled void.

Hoffa, awaiting the results in a mid-city hotel where he had been staying during the campaign, greeted a group of noisy supporters outside his room after they arrived following announcement of the victory at a center-city office building.

He ordered the group to quit down and told them to go to the headquarters of Local 107 where a celebration would be held.

Greeted By Applause

Hoffa was greeted by a tremendous round of applause when he arrived later at the local headquarters. He told a wildly cheering crowd there: "Many government agencies, newspapers and others were waiting to hear that we are divided and falling apart. But we are not."

He added, "Say a prayer that we have saved families and everything that goes with it in this city."

Couple Killed In Accident

Wymore (AP)—An elderly Beatrice couple were killed Sunday afternoon when their car was struck broadside by a cattle truck one mile south of Wymore on U.S. 77.

Gage County Sheriff Fred Steinkamp Jr. identified the couple as 80-year-old John Broschinski and his 75-year-old wife, Frieda.

Sheriff Steinkamp said the Broschinski car pulled from a farm driveway. The truck driver, Egan Kresak of Tobias, was not injured.

—DOMINICANS THREATEN WAR— Ultimatum Sent Neighbor Haiti

RELATIONS BROKEN OFF

Washington (AP)—The Dominican Republic charged Sunday that Haiti had seized its embassy at Port au Prince, and engaged in a plot to assassinate its president.

The Dominicans threatened military action in retaliation, and issued a 24-hour ultimatum.

Tension in the new Caribbean crisis seem to mount by the hour. The Council of the Organization of American States (OAS) met in emergency session in Washington to seek a peaceful solution.

Break Relations

The already strained diplomatic relations between the two countries was broken off by Haiti, the Haitian ambassador to the OAS announced. Affairs between the two countries had been carried out by charges d'affaires, rather than the usual ambassadors.

In Port au Prince, the Haitian capital, armed troops and civilian militiamen ringed the embassies of the Dominican Republic and other Latin American countries. At least 60 Haitians, including many former army officers and their families, took refuge in the embassies.

President Francois Duvalier's regime tightened security with heightened suspicion that the regular army was the source of possible attempts to overthrow the government.

Diplomatic sources in Haiti said at least 15 persons were shot to death Friday and Saturday after a reported attack on bodyguards for two of Duvalier's children.

Leaves Cancelled

In Santo Domingo, the Dominican Republic cancelled leaves for soldiers.

One official said there were no troop movements toward the border, but there were reports that border garrisons had been strengthened. Haiti and the Dominican Republic share the island of Hispaniola.

The crisis sent the Council of the Organization of American States into emergency session here.

Haiti denied a list of charges presented by the Dominicans.

The council was expected to set up a 3-man fact-finding committee to try to ward off a military flareup between the two Central American nations. The United States and Costa Rica were expected to get two of the 3 positions on the committee.

The Dominican Republic was expected to agree to hold off military action until the

Grocer Is Booked In Murder Of Hiker

Gadsden, Ala. (AP)—A 40-year-old rural storekeeper, the father of 6 children, was charged Sunday with first degree murder in the roadside slaying last Tuesday of Baltimore integration pilgrim William L. Moore.

Sheriff Dewey Colvard said the accused man, Floyd L. Simpson, was booked on the murder charge, which will be made formal Monday with the signing of a state warrant by the circuit judge and the prosecutor.

Moore, a 35-year-old postman, was shot to death near Atlanta late Tuesday night. Two bullets struck him, one in the face and the other in the back of the head. He had said he was walking to Jackson, Miss., to give his views on integration to Gov. Ross Barnett.

State and county officers are continuing the investigation, the sheriff said. But there is nothing new "at this time," he said.

"We don't know if anyone else was involved," Colvard said.

Feelings were running at a high pitch in the rural community of Collins, about 30 miles to the northwest, where Simpson operated a grocery-service station.

Residents predominant by millworkers and farmers, showed strong hostility to strangers.

A Gadsden Times reporter,

M. L. Ray, was thrown out of Simpson's store by an unidentified man who warned, "You'd better get out—I'm not going to tell you a second time."

Ray said he asked "who lives here?" He said the man ordered him out, then shoved him out.

Ultimatum Sent Neighbor Haiti

... RELATIONS BROKEN OFF

Washington (AP) — The Dominican Republic charged Sunday that Haiti had seized its embassy at Port au Prince, and engaged in a plot to assassinate its president.

The Dominicans threatened military action in retaliation, and issued a 24-hour ultimatum.

Tension in the new Caribbean crisis seem to mount by the hour. The Council of the Organization of American States (OAS) met in emergency session in Washington to seek a peaceful solution.

In Santo Domingo, the Dominican Republic cancelled leaves for soldiers.

One official said there were no troop movements toward the border, but there were reports that border garrisons had been strengthened. Haiti and the Dominican Republic share the island of Hispaniola.

The crisis sent the Council of the Organization of American States into emergency session here.

The Dominican Republic was expected to agree to hold off military action until the fact-finding committee could act.

Between afternoon and evening sessions of the OAS council, both governments were sounded out on their reaction to the proposal to send a committee. One source said both the Dominican Republic and Haiti seemed to be "in a conciliatory mood."

No Movement
However, troops on leave in the Dominican Republic were called back Sunday night. Tension was rising in the Dominican capital of Santo Domingo. But armed forces secretary Maj. Gen. Victor Elvis Vinas Roman said there had been no movement of troops toward the Haitian border.

There was a report that U.S. naval units were being sent to bring out U.S. citizens from Haiti, but an American official to the OAS issued a flat denial. "Nonsense," he said.

The Dominican Ambassador to the OAS, Arturo Calventi, presented 12 charges against Haiti at the OAS Council meeting, claiming they were acts of aggression which threatened the peace of the hemisphere.

Has President
The Dominican Republic now has its first elected president, Juan Bosch, following the long dictatorship of the late Rafael Trujillo.

Dominicans charged that Haiti, along with members of the Trujillo family, was plotting to kill Bosch.

In addition, the Dominican bill of complaints to the OAS said Haiti had refused to give safe conduct to 22 of the 28 persons who had taken asylum in the Dominican embassy since June 1962.

The Dominicans also cited the closing of the Dominican-Haitian frontier last week and the assassination of a Dominican consul last February without any explanation for the crime.

Preparations
In reply, Fern D. Baguidy, Haitian representative to the OAS, said the charges are simply preparations for military action which he said had been planned a long time.

Ohmstedes Of Guide Rock Urge Farmers 'Talk Up' Agriculture

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Guide Rock—"If you don't talk up for agriculture, you can't expect anybody to write your story."

"This is the reason Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Ohmstede believe has been responsible for much of the poor public relations in agriculture."

"So long as farmers let untruth go unchallenged and quietly take what is said about them without telling their side of the story, they can never hope for equality with those who do," says Mrs. Frances Ohmstede.

From nearly 10 states in recent weeks the Ohmstedes have received letters and messages from other farmers and businessmen echoing their thoughts in agriculture that have been presented through news accounts and letters to the editors, the Ohmstedes report.

Unafraid Friends of the Ohmstedes recognize them as a couple not afraid to take a strong front for agriculture.

"You'll generally find Bryce and Frances in the thick of things and it has been their encouragement that has kept many of the rest of us working for agriculture," explained a neighbor.

If Mrs. Ohmstede were to make a criticism of farmers she says it would be, "that they don't talk enough."

She believes that both the farmer and businessman need to be educated on one another's problems.

If someone mentions farmers as being "second class citizens," Mrs. Ohmstede is ready to start swinging with words and phrases outlining the facts that support the farm economy being the backbone of Nebraska and the nation.

She tells farm people to say in public what they say in private.

"Just talking to ourselves will never get the job done, the man in town and in the country are both dependent on one another and if we ever lose sight of the importance of agriculture we might as well roll up main street," said Frances Ohmstede in her characteristic style of striking hard for agriculture.

The Ohmstedes see a ray of hope for agriculture. The brightness of this ray they attribute to the fact that more people in agriculture are participating in public events and are speaking up on the importance of having a plentiful supply of the best food products in the world.

Not Alone

"We know that we are not alone in our efforts, because almost daily we get a letter or message from some other farmer that we never met telling us that they agree with our speaking up for agriculture and that they are ready to lend their hand to a louder voice for agriculture," said the Ohmstedes.

When Frances Ohmstede is asked about the origin of the drive behind her efforts she explains that as a city girl marrying a farmer she soon found out that agriculture was "not a bed of roses and that many, many folks had the wrong conception of farming and ranching."

A sample of the Ohmstede agriculture theory goes like this, "Farmers ought to find out which of the solutions to agriculture problems are workable and which are just fairy stories and then work together for things that are practical. Slogans and promises don't buy tractors, and progress waits for no man."

They believe one of the best places to start is with a "yes" vote on the May 21 wheat referendum.

"Our best hope is to keep farm income up—that's the only way the farmer can remain a good town customer," adds Mrs. Ohmstede.

4 Men Crash Through Wall To W. Berlin

Berlin, (Monday) (AP)—Four men crashed through the Red wall dividing Berlin in an East German army truck early Monday.

First reports said the men were fired upon by East German border guards, but West Berlin police said none was hit.

The 4 men were in civilian clothes and it was not immediately known whether they were members of the East German army or how they obtained the truck used in the escape.

It is the second escape this month in an East German army car through the concrete wall that stretches for nearly 50 miles through the heart of this metropolis.

Nearly two weeks ago a young East German plowed through the barricade in an armored car he had stolen in the army garage where he worked as a civilian mechanic.

Lincoln Council Is Blasted By Candidate G. Day

City Council candidate George Day Sunday night criticized the present council for "indecision and inaction."

"I deplore a council which makes a decision and reverses itself the next week," Day said in a radio broadcast and a statement released to newspapers.

Day also objected to the present council permitting raw sewage to be dumped into Salt Creek. He said this is being done in 4 places.

He also called for action to combine city and county tax assessing, and efforts to develop a city-county building. He suggested land adjacent to the present courthouse should have "priority for convenience and low acquisition cost," since it is now owned by the county.

Winds, Hail Tear Into Fort Worth

Fort Worth (UPI)—A small tornado, gale winds up to 92 miles an hour and bullet-like hail ripped Fort Worth Sunday. Seven persons were hospitalized and damage was estimated at more than $1 million.

The twister roared through the city's famed stockyard district on the north side. Blinding rain cascaded from a pitch black sky drenching homes unroofed by the tornado. Trees were uprooted and streets were turned to rubble.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said one-half inch of rain poured down in a 10-minute period. Hail covered the ground in northern parts of the city.

Four other twisters were spotted in north Texas. One tore through the small town of Anna, north of Dallas, causing $4,000 damage to homes and business buildings. The other twisters—two of them in Fort Worth—did not touch ground.

A Sunday school class meeting in a fire station at the Fort Worth suburb of Blue Mound escaped serious injury when the twister ripped the roof from the building. One man suffered a broken arm.

High winds and rain also hit Dallas, flooding underpasses, toppling some trees and stranding motorists.

TORNADO HITS

Killeen, Tex. (UPI)—A tornado ripped through the south edge of Killeen in central Texas Sunday night, destroying 6 homes and injuring 4 persons. A middle-aged man was missing.

None of the injured was seriously hurt. Three were children.

Donald D. Owens, a city policeman, said search parties were checking through the rubble left by the storm for the missing man.

He was not immediately identified.

Princess And Husband Water-Ski On Sunday

London (AP)—Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, spent 3 hours water-skiing Sunday on a private lake near Reading. It was their second outing on the lake in two days of mild spring weather. The princess wore a black bathing suit and yellow cap.

The couple took up the sport last year.

Goldwater Is Not Afraid Of Armed West Germany

Washington (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Sunday he "wouldn't be afraid of an armed Germany again" because "the only country in this world that Russia really fears is Germany—armed."

Appearing on a recorded radio-television program (Women on the Move), the conservative Republican leader said he realizes that full rearming of Germany "might cause trouble" but said "I think it's worth the risk."

Goldwater did not specify that he favors nuclear arms for West Germany and could not be reached immediately for clarification. But West Germany has been rearming with conventional weapons for several years and presumably his reference was to nuclear arms.

The Soviet Union consistently has taken a strong position against a nuclear-armed West Germany and State Department officials long have held the view that giving the West Germans nuclear arms would create a grave risk of war.

Girl Fire Victim Is Reported In Fair Condition

A 17-month-old girl hospitalized Friday night with burns suffered when her clothes ignited, was reported in fair condition Sunday.

The girl's father, Lee N. Hinrichs of 2926 Plymouth, also burned when he tried to beat out the flames in the child's garments, was released from the hospital.

Police said that Hinrichs was building a fire in the fireplace, when his daughter, Lori Ann, got too close to the flames and her clothes caught fire.

Ag College Short Courses Draw Interest

Young farmers and ranchers in Nebraska already have expressed considerable interest in University of Nebraska College of Agriculture short courses to be offered next winter.

Dr. Franklin Eldridge, director of resident instruction at the College, says that inquiries have been received from many parts of the state from young farmers and ranchers who are considering the short courses. The 8-week short course begins Dec. 2, 1963 and Feb. 10, 1964.

Each short course will include practical classes in field crops, marketing farm products, farm management, mechanized agriculture, and livestock production. In addition, students may select courses in marriage and the family, the world of music, world affairs, or recreational leadership.

Any young man beyond high school age, regardless of residence, may apply for admission to the short courses which will be conducted through the Midwest Institute for Young Adults and the NU Center for Continuing Education. Students will live in the Hall of Youth at the Center which has a cafeteria, meeting and activity rooms and recreational facilities.

The cost of attending each 8-week term is $300. Students who apply by June 1, 1963 may be eligible for MIYA grants and scholarships. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the local County Extension Agent. Application forms may be obtained by writing: Dr. Otto Holberg, head, Hall of Youth, Nebraska Center, University of Nebraska, Lincoln 3, Nebraska.

STOP CORN ROOTWORM WITH THE SAME GREAT INSECTICIDE USED BY MIDWEST GROWERS FOR THE PAST 5 YEARS ...THIMET® 10-G

Growers across the country have been using THIMET for years... on potatoes, sugar beets, peanuts, cotton and other crops. Now Nebraska tests have proved THIMET best for corn rootworm control.

THIMET gives outstanding control of all rootworms...including resistant ones.

Corn treated with THIMET 10-G, at planting time, consistently produces higher average yields than corn treated with any other recommended insecticide... and at the low rate of 10 lbs. of granules per acre. (Potato growers are regularly using 30 lbs. to the acre).

THIMET granules, applied at planting, protect every corn plant right up to harvest. Root systems stay healthy for full feeding of the growing crop.

No problems handling THIMET

During the past years, THIMET 10-G has been used safely and effectively by thousands of growers large and small under every kind of condition.

THIMET comes packed in individual 10-pound bags... one bag treats one acre. There's no need to come in contact with THIMET granules at all. Just open the bag and empty into the hopper.

The label instructions on Cyanamid products and on products containing Cyanamid ingredients, are the result of years of research and have been accepted by Federal and State Governments. Always read the labels and carefully follow directions for use.

Ohmstedes Of Guide Rock Urge Farmers 'Talk Up' Agriculture

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Guide Rock—"If you don't talk up for agriculture, you can't expect anybody to write your story."

This is the reason Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Ohmstede believe has been responsible for much of the poor public relations in agriculture.

"So long as farmers let untruth go unchallenged and quietly take what is said about them without telling their side of the story, they can never hope for equality with those who do," says Mrs. Frances Ohmstede.

From nearly 10 states in recent weeks the Ohmstedes have received letters and messages from other farmers and businessmen echoing their thoughts in agriculture that have been presented through news accounts and letters to the editors, the Ohmstedes report.

Unafraid Friends of the Ohmstedes recognize them as a couple not afraid to take a strong front for agriculture.

"You'll generally find Bryce and Frances in the thick of things and it has been their encouragement that has kept many of the rest of us working for agriculture," explained a neighbor.

If Mrs. Ohmstede were to make a criticism of farmers she says it would be, "that they don't talk enough."

She believes that both the farmer and businessman need to be educated on one another's problems.

If someone mentions farmers as being "second class citizens," Mrs. Ohmstede is ready to start swinging with words and phrases outlining the facts that support the farm economy being the backbone of Nebraska and the nation.

She tells farm people to say in public what they say in private.

"Just talking to ourselves will never get the job done, the man in town and in the country are both dependent on one another and if we ever lose sight of the importance of agriculture we might as well roll up main street," said Frances Ohmstede in her characteristic style of striking hard for agriculture.

The Ohmstedes see a ray of hope for agriculture. The brightness of this ray they attribute to the fact that more people in agriculture are participating in public events and are speaking up on the importance of having a plentiful supply of the best food products in the world.

Not Alone

"We know that we are not alone in our efforts, because almost daily we get a letter or message from some other farmer that we never met telling us that they agree with our speaking up for agriculture and that they are ready to lend their hand to a louder voice for agriculture," said the Ohmstedes.

When Frances Ohmstede is asked about the origin of the drive behind her efforts she explains that as a city girl marrying a farmer she soon found out that agriculture was "not a bed of roses and that many, many folks had the wrong conception of farming and ranching."

A sample of the Ohmstede agriculture theory goes like this, "Farmers ought to find out which of the solutions to agriculture problems are workable and which are just fairy stories and then work together for things that are practical. Slogans and promises don't buy tractors, and progress waits for no man."

They believe one of the best places to start is with a "yes" vote on the May 21 wheat referendum.

"Our best hope is to keep farm income up—that's the only way the farmer can remain a good town customer," adds Mrs. Ohmstede.

Police Jail Man For Shooting Hole In Fender Of Car

Police Sunday night jailed a 50-year-old service station manager after he shot a hole in the fender of a car owned by another Lincoln man.

He told police he fired the shot after the driver of the car refused to pay for $2 worth of gasoline.

Police said the man would appear in court Monday.

4 Men Crash Through Wall To W. Berlin

Berlin, (Monday) (P)—Four men crashed through the Red wall dividing Berlin in an East German army truck early Monday.

First reports said the men were fired upon by East German border guards, but West Berlin police said none was hit.

The 4 men were in civilian clothes and it was not immediately known whether they were members of the East German army or how they obtained the truck used in the escape.

It is the second escape this month in an East German army car through the concrete wall that stretches for nearly 50 miles through the heart of this metropolis.

Nearly two weeks ago a young East German plowed through the barricade in an armored car he had stolen in the army garage where he worked as a civilian mechanic.

Lincoln Council Is Blasted By Candidate G. Day

City Council candidate George Day Sunday night criticized the present council for "indecision and inaction."

"I deplore a council which makes a decision and reverses itself the next week," Day said in a radio broadcast and a statement released to newspapers.

Day also objected to the present council permitting raw sewage to be dumped into Salt Creek. He said this is being done in 4 places.

He also called for action to combine city and county tax assessing, and efforts to develop a city-county building. He suggested land adjacent to the present courthouse should have "priority for convenience and low acquisition cost," since it is now owned by the county.

Winds, Hail Tear Into Fort Worth

Fort Worth (UPI)—A small tornado, gale winds up to 92 miles an hour and bullet-like hail ripped Fort Worth Sunday. Seven persons were hospitalized and damage was estimated at more than $1 million.

Dr. William Colville, agronomist, College of Agriculture, keeps records on Nebraska seasons.

Using the blossom of the lilac as one of his clues he reports that our current season is nearly 3 weeks ahead of normal.

Other estimates by agronomists and plant breeders have shown the wheat crop as much as 23 days ahead of normal.

Robert Rauner of Gurley, president of the Nebraska Wheat Growers, in a speech at Blue Hill explained to farmers and city people why the farmer needs some form of production control to prevent huge surpluses.

"Anybody can farm. It is not like a doctor, dentist, teacher, lawyer, real estate man or druggist who first must have a license or degree to qualify. And little complaint is heard from professions where it is unethical to practice any sort of cutting price," said Rauner.

My guess on the wheat referendum would be that it will pass in Nebraska. I base this on (1) the economics of the farmer knowing for sure what he can expect in the way of price, and (2) the built-in crop insurance factor that each bushel he has a certificate for is worth 70¢, even if he loses the crop through weather or insects.

Besides many farmers are commenting that the feed grains program has been extended through 1964-65 by Congress on a 208 to 196 vote, and that the men voting "yes" on feed grains might well be considered likely "no" votes in offering any new wheat legislation if the referendum fails.

The chance of getting to use allotted acres on feed grains and wheat in a substitution clause will also appeal to many farmers, Rauner believes.

"This way a farmer could best plan his program on his allotted acreage for whatever crop works best on his land," said Rauner.

In the next few days the Nebraska Wheat Growers will make a statewide release of the income figures realized by farmers in peace time prior to farm program days in comparison with income under government programs.

I saw the preview and never before realized there was such a difference or that a "yes" vote would mean so much more income for the state.

3 Escape From New Prison Billed As 'Most Modern'

Moberly, Mo. (UPI)—Three men escaped early Sunday from the medium-security prison here, which is billed as the "world's most modern."

Prison officials said the 3 were discovered missing early Sunday morning. Sheriff's deputies and the state highway patrol joined in a search of the area.

The prisoners were identified as Stephen Ray Schulten, 22, of Hannibal, who was serving 4 years for assault; Philip S. Rogers, 22, of Poplar Bluff, serving 3 years for grand theft; and Charles W. White, 32, formerly of Memphis, Tenn., serving 12 years for second-degree murder.

The state prison here opened in January.

York Air Crash Survivor Better

NUCKOLLS COUNTY TREASURER, DAVENPORT MINISTER DIE

Superior (P) — Lee B. Keldsen, 31, of York, was in a slightly improved condition Sunday afternoon at a Superior Hospital where he was taken following the crash of a light plane Saturday.

Keldsen's two companions, Dale Ferguson, 33, Nuckolls County treasurer and mayor of Nelson, and Richard J. Smith, 22, a Church of Christ Minister at Davenport, were killed in the crash.

A hospital spokesman said Keldsen regained consciousness Sunday and recognized two members of his family. The extent of his injuries haven't been determined, however, and he remains on the critical list.

Flying Home
County Atty. W. E. Garrison said the 3 men were returning home from a Church of Christ meeting in Abilene, Tex., when the crash occurred near Nelson on a farm owned by James Keith.

Basil Farber, a farmer living nearby, said he heard the plane in the air and then heard it crash in a field. Visibility was less than a quarter mile at the time, he said.

The plane, a 4-place Cherokee Piper, was demolished. It was owned by C. D. Doher of Nelson.

Lindell Retiring

Beatrice (P) — R. E. Lindell, distributor and export sales manager of the Dempster Mill Manufacturing Co. since 1933, has announced his retirement May 1. He has been with the firm nearly 44 years.

Arguments Against Income Tax Sound 'Hollow'

"The arguments of the opponents of the state income tax are so hollow they echo," Charles Marshall, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau charged.

"The arguments they use against LB612 are ancient and threadbare. They apply just as well against the property tax. Furthermore, the income tax does not fall unequally on different groups of citizens; or between counties; or areas of the state, as the property tax does."

Marshall said the big argument is that the income tax would automatically increase state spending. He asked "Why? Have property taxes really held down state spending?"

Marshall said, "I cannot believe Nebraska's business and professional community really wants to permanently penalize farmers and ranchers with an unjust tax system in which about one in 8 of the state's population, receiving one-fourth of the state's income, has to pay approximately half of the state's property taxes.

"I believe business and professional people want fair taxation but have been misled by some misinformed local Chamber of Commerce officials and Omaha interests who believe they benefit from the present system."

These same interests are the strongest supporters generally of special levies based upon property taxation, which have added much to property taxes in the last 20 years, Marshall continued.

Whenever some state agency wants new sources of revenue, pressure is brought to set up a new special levy. The special levy is used to finance building at state institutions and the development of state parks.

An added group of special levies for various state institutions, educational television and other purposes are proposed this session of the Legislature.

"Talk about income tax increasing state spending," Marshall concluded, "What about the special levies on property and the 600% increase in state spending since 1940?"

WOW Delegates Start To Arrive

Norfolk (P) — Delegates were arriving Sunday for the opening of the 32nd biennial convention of the Nebraska, North and South Dakota convention of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society.

Though the convention proper doesn't open until Monday, registration of early arrivals began Sunday.

Dr. Allen P. Burkhardt, executive director of the Association of Nebraska Taxpayers, and President J. Richard Sims of the society were scheduled as opening session speakers.

Catholic Church to make the teachings of Christ more important today."

He added that "The Apostolic work of the Catholic laymen during the coming decade will be bringing the love of Christ to the world."

The Council of the Year award went to Broken Bow and was accepted by Grand Knight William Moharrt.

District of the Year honors went to District Deputy Kenneth Holmes and the councils in his area. They are Lawrence, Hebron, Fairbury and Hastings.

Qualifying for the Star Council award made by the Supreme Council were Hastings, Broken Bow, Nebraska City and West Omaha.

The delegates were told that the goal of a 500-member increase by June 30, 1963, would be surpassed.

Election of officers and selection of delegates to the Supreme Convention in Minneapolis in August were scheduled for the final day of the convention Monday.

Hirohito Observes His 62nd Birthday

Tokyo, (Monday) (P) — Emperor Hirohito observed his 62nd birthday Monday and thousands of Japanese flocked to the palace shouting "Banzai" (long live).

The emperor's birthday is a national holiday.

He began the day by visiting a shrine inside the moated palace grounds to report the occasion to his ancestors, accompanied by his eldest son, Crown Prince Akihito.

The palace gates were opened to his subjects.

The emperor scheduled 7 appearances on a specially constructed diad to welcome them.

Because of the increasing number of foreigners, Tokyo police said security details in the palace area this year had been augmented by English-speaking officers.

Omaha Boy Electrocuted

Omaha (P) — A 15-year-old boy was electrocuted Sunday afternoon in a bathtub at his home.

He was David A. Means. His father, Allan Means, found the boy. His radio was beside him.

Acting Douglas County Coroner George Sullivan said David suffered burns on the chest, left hand and right arm.

Sullivan said it was not determined if the radio fell into the bathtub or if David reached out to adjust it.

Blast-Proof Cable Job Set In Otoe

Nebraska City (P) — Construction of an underground building, part of the Bell Telephone System's blast-resistant transcontinental cable system, will get underway in Otoe County in May.

The 7,300-square foot structure will call for excavation of about 7,000 yards of earth, the use of more than 300 tons of steel and about 2,000 yards of concrete.

The building will house one of the cable amplifier stations on the transcontinental cable on which work began in 1960. The eastern third of the system now is complete.

Complex Electronics
When the building is completed, a spokesman said, technicians will install the complex electronic equipment associated with cable operation.

All the cable amplifier stations and communications centers are being constructed underground, engineered to withstand any nuclear attack, short of a direct hit, the spokesman explained.

The underground system avoids large cities and major target areas. When fully equipped, the new system will add about 9,000 telephone circuits to the 15,000 now spanning the country.

CARMICHAEL

Grocer Bluffs Bandit, Sells Quart Of Milk

Norwalk, Conn. (P) — Grocery store owner Edward Colohan, 57, looked the gunman in the eye and sneered:

"Are you kidding?" He then turned to an empty back room and yelled: "Hey, this guy wants the money in the cash register."

Colohan then walked past the gunman straight out the front door.

Seconds later, the door opened behind him and out came the gunman, carrying a quart of milk. He handed Colohan 30 cents—the exact purchase price—climbed into a curbside car and drove off.

Police, who gave the account of the would-be robbery, said Colohan's cash register was untouched.

NU's Dr. Baller Reports On National Teachers Society

Crete — Dr. Warren Baller, professor of educational psychology at the University of Nebraska, reported on the development of the National Society for the Colleges of Teacher Education during the annual spring meeting of the Nebraska chapter.

In addition to Dr. Baller's talk the afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of the 5-year program. At the conclusion of the session officers and meeting place for next year's session were chosen.

Baller, as president-elect of the national society, reported that the main task of the society is to clarify its modern functions. He felt that its greatest concern should be to improve the educational curricula of institutions granting education degrees.

Only State
He said that Nebraska is the only state in the union affiliated with the National society. Three or 4 years ago the Nebraska membership was only 3; now it's 50 and stands third in the nation for total membership.

Baller went on to say that because of the national society there is a growing awareness of what the educational task is today. The society started the movement called "curriculum information."

During the discussion of the 5-year program, chaired by Dr. Eugene Wiegman of Concordia, 3 popular types of 5-year programs were explained.

'Master of Teaching Arts'
It was pointed out that the graduate of the 5-year program as it is envisioned in the future will probably be a

Bellevue Tops In Math Contest

Omaha (P) — Bellevue High School edged Omaha Westside by two points to win the large school division team trophy in Creighton University's first Mathematics Field Day.

Plattsmouth won first among schools of 300 to 1,000 enrollment Saturday. In the small school division, the trophy went to Walnut, Iowa.

The teams competed in contests involving mathematical computations during a 4-hour program. Students also competed for individual honors.

Placing first in the games were Michael Kinney of Sioux City, Iowa Heelan, Louis Schwartzkopf of Lincoln High, Ann Snow of Westside, Russell Swatek and Michael Parisot of Creighton Prep and Theresa Baumann of Omaha Cathedral.

5 Million Vote

Taipei, Formosa (UPI) — Five million voters balloted for 74 candidates to the Formosa provincial assembly, highest elected offices on the island. The ruling Kuomintang (Nationalist) party was expected to maintain its two-thirds majority.

Summary of Conditions

The low pressure line which caused havoc across Nebraska Sunday is expected to move quickly into central Illinois Monday, extending into eastern Texas. A high cell now over Nevada will expand east and southeastward. As the low extending over southeast Nebraska, southwest Iowa and adjacent areas continues east, it will tend to pull in more cooler temperatures from the north.

It's Good To Know

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

For a very young man of 12 or so, the living room is not the place to try out corn silks, cigars or cigarettes. Such adventures as these call for a secluded spot behind the barn, if your modern home happens to have one, or at least a place well hidden by trees and bushes. And the location should not be too close to home as smoke is a tell-tale sign of something wrong to an alert mother or father.

If cornered in your hideaway, you are bewildered by the cunningness of your parents in finding you whereabouts. But all they have done is follow the faint spiral of smoke that drifted up from your hiding place. And do you ever forget the sheepish feeling that overcame you in such a situation and the stammering that made the episode only worse? And maybe you can even remember a sore extremity or a few days of confinement inside or an extra heavy load of household chores — any one or all of which might have been the reward for your daring deed. And when you couldn't stand your stomach-ache any longer, how you hated to admit to the number of green apples you had eaten that afternoon.

But such times in life pass away and all enter into their years of maturity and responsibility. The day comes when you walk out into the world on your own and you are your own judge and jury. There are rules of society, to be sure, but you have a very great deal of room in which to operate.

Then, you simply have to live with your own conscience but it isn't always a lot different than it was as a boy in the watermelon patch or a girl in her mother's perfume. You still run headlong into urgings and ambitions that seem to run counter to the society in which you live, even though you are free to pursue them if you are possessed of such persistence.

The American people today enjoy, or are supposed to, the most leisure time of any well organized and modern nation in the world. But one thing about this leisure time has always been a little baffling. It has seemed that the average person considered you somewhat of a nut if you traveled thousands of miles by car on a two weeks vacation. It is a rewarding thing to learn that such vacations are not at all on the loony side and are, in fact, a major form of recreation on the part of a great many people. The wrong idea has been spread as a result of the fast pace of life today. People have been so engrained with the virtue of a purpose in everything that they have found themselves unable to take even a vacation without some specific objective in mind.

Colorado's Worry

The Denver Post is seriously concerned over what it describes as the sagging morale at various levels of public education in Colorado.

Of late communities have been turning down needed bond issues. The perennial critics of all educational progress are rising in influence. There is a noticeable trend in higher Colorado education of resignations from able administrators and faculty men, going away to places where the teaching environment is more friendly or where administrative careers can reach fulfillment.

The Post hopes it is not a progressing reaction and observes that "gloom feeds upon itself." It notes that this is the time of year for legislative appropriations, of school board elections of tax concerns and other influences which can corrode the enthusiasm for all public service, education being no exception.

Tax Cut Gaining Ground

Backing of a federal tax cut by a large group of leading industrialists has given more strength to this proposal from the Kennedy administration. For once, it appears that both labor and industry have decided to forego some of the differences they have in the hope of achieving at least a part of their objectives.

The administration cut is not exactly what either labor or management would have proposed but represents a pretty fair compromise. It would reduce the corporate income tax from 52 to 47 per cent for a loss in government revenue of $2.6 billion. Individual income tax rates would be cut in all brackets with the largest reductions in the lower income area. Total loss of revenue to the government from individual reductions would be $11 billion.

Business and industry would undoubtedly prefer more of the reduction on the side of corporate income but the cut pro-

This has led to the reaching of a destination as the paramount end of things. The idea is not to leisurely enjoy yourself as you ramble along toward some uncertain place, not really too concerned over whether you get there or not. The idea has been to get as quickly as you could to a selected spot and then go like mad in absorbing everything that is there. You wouldn't go east, west or any direction for what you might find on the way, but rather, for what you would find only when you did get there. Thus, it was some kind of peculiar makeup in you that would cause you to take three or four days getting to your destination. The smarter person either took a rapid means of transportation or drove 24 hours a day, never so much as a mile an hour below the legal limits.

Now, however, those who just like a leisurely drive through the country for enjoyment of the scenery need not feel in doing so like they are about to be caught stealing a cherry pie off the kitchen window sill. The pleasure can now be pursued as an adult and mature pastime because it happens to be the major recreation in America today.

Maybe you don't believe that riding along in a car is recreation but recreation these days has come to mean anything that one does in filling his leisure time, even if it is just sitting in a rocker on the front porch. A report by the Automobile Manufacturers Association, which tells you every conceivable fact there is about cars and their owners, shows that automobile riding for sightseeing and relaxation is engaged in often by 47 per cent of the American people.

The next nearest activity is picnicking which is done often by 31 per cent of the American people. And in all forms of vacationing, the car is the mode of transportation 82 per cent of the time.

The facts are concurred in by the Department of Interior which lists driving for pleasure as the most popular form of outdoor recreation. And to anyone a part of this large segment of the nation, the facts are easy to understand. The breathtaking sights that await you along the highways of America are equal to or better than can be seen in any part of the world.

Perhaps it is some distant place such as Yosemite National Park in California or the colorful New England states that you can remember best but even your own immediate area offers and endless panorama of beauty and enchantment. And most people do find what they want pretty close to home as 50 per cent of the families vacation within 500 miles of their homes.

One hopes that it is only that, and that Colorado is an exceptional state suffering the misfortune of too much educational controversy.

It is a shortsighted public which cannot recall that enormous public demands were put upon the American educational system at the time the Russian Sputnik appeared in the sky. The insistence for strong educational reform and expansion put education on the defensive for a time. Then the educators went to work, fulfilling the public mandate. Their response has been constructive and good. But they are becoming villains again because they did what the public demanded.

This is neither fair nor consistent. It is enough to make cynics out of dedicated educators and make long range losers of a capricious public. It is a sad commentary that higher education is being put on the rack for complying with national necessity.

Also, it can be argued that the cut in individual rates will be of assistance to industry by providing the American people with additional purchasing power for the hard goods of our economy.

It is easy to argue whether the economy is given greatest assistance through increased purchasing power or increased profits for capital investment but the argument can be one only of degrees. Certainly, both purchasing power and available capital funds are vital ingredients of our system.

Those who entertain deficit spending fears should remember that the deficit can be wiped out, if it ever is, only by a healthy economy. The purpose of the tax cut is to give a healthy glow to the source of funds, personal and corporate income, from which any deficit payment must come.

Cat In The Machinery

While the world apprehensively eyes the trigger of nuclear calamity it takes some reassurance in the belief that the bigger the war the bigger must be the provocation. And it can imagine no provocation large enough to cause the destruction of civilization.

Montgomery Parley Similar To Vienna

In some respects the confrontation between Brother Bob Kennedy, the attorney general, and Gov. George Wallace, governor of Alabama, was like the confrontation between the President and Nikita Khrushchev in Vienna, two years ago. Both in Vienna and in Montgomery, the protagonists agreed to disagree, but to keep in touch regarding the future.

In neither case, furthermore, did the Kennedys promise not to keep troops out of Alabama, or missiles out of Russia. But they did promise to use restraint. However, there was one piece of repartee between the attorney general and the governor of Alabama which brought smiles to both.

Governor Wallace was telling Bob Kennedy about his support for his brother.

"I supported your brother for vice president in 1956 when he was opposed by Senator Kefauver," he said. "And I supported him for President in 1960 and went out and made speeches for him."

"From what I read in the newspapers," interposed the attorney general, "you do not plan to do the same in 1964."

Governor Wallace did not deny that he would oppose Kennedy for re-election. He went on to say that neither party had been very kind to the South—especially the Democrats.

"You have to remember," he said, "that the South has been the most faithful supporter of the Democratic party. At one time the only Democrats in the Congress were from the South. If we had deserted you, there would have been no Democratic party in Washington."

After some pleasant preliminaries, Attorney General Kennedy brought up the federal court order regarding integration and asked what the governor planned to do at the University of Alabama when the question arose in the fall.

The governor gave his standard statement that he delivered all during his election campaign that he would stand in the doorway of the university or any school house and resist integration as long as he could. But he added that he did not believe in violence.

Kennedy expressed the hope that the problem could be kept in the courts, "not in the streets."

Wallace agreed, but said he had an obligation to the people of Alabama.

The governor pressed the attorney general regarding plans for the use of troops, but added that he had an obligation as attorney general to enforce the mandate of the courts.

On the whole, the attorney general did not charm Governor Wallace as much as he charmed some of the other people in Montgomery. Though pickets demonstrated against him, there were also about a thousand people in the state capital who greeted him warmly and many who asked him for his autograph.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Exile Government Not The Answer

WASHINGTON — For all the passionate partisanship that Cuba has generated, it is possible one lesson has been learned—the United States cannot impose a government on the Cuban people made up of exiles, no matter how dedicated and devoted they may be.

The more realistic and hard-headed among the Cuban exile groups have themselves come to realize this in the aftermath of the angry charges made by Jose Miró Cardona in resigning as head of the Cuban Revolutionary Council. Miró Cardona's letter with its confused accusations would not have attracted so much attention if it had not been for the bumbling efforts of the State Department to anticipate and counteract it.

The Revolutionary Council was one of the unhappy hangovers from the Bay of Pigs fiasco. The President compounded the error in his speech to the returned Cuban prisoners in Miami last Christmas. He seemed to be putting his stamp of approval on the Council as the instrument for the overthrow of Fidel Castro and, by implication at least, as the core of a new government.

Playing exile politics has been one of the most mischief-making elements in the whole Cuban mess. The worst offender, certainly in the months leading up to the Bay of Pigs, was the Central Intelligence Agency. The shores of recent history are strewn with the wrecks of government imposed in the wake of American intervention. The trouble begins after the Marines have restored order. The result is too often a Trujillo in the Dominican Republic or a Somoza in Nicaragua. The leader installed, thanks to American power, looks to Washington and not to his own people for guidance. A disastrous entanglement ensues and, as we have seen in the Dominican Republic, American force in a somewhat more subtle form is finally used to get rid of an incredibly cruel dictator.

As to how Castro is removed and what comes next, the administration has for the time being no answers. In the interval while waiting further developments there is no fixed Cuban policy. Some White House advisers believe that by early September the Russian troops will have been removed and Premier Khrushchev will give this his own special twist by announcing that they have completed their mission which was to train Cubans to man the latest anti-aircraft missiles and to fly advanced MIGs.

There are those in the administration still talking hopefully of a Cuban government-in-exile. This would unite all exile factions. But the experience of World War II, when a dozen governments-in-exile waited for the allies to liberate Europe so they could return to power, should disabuse any illusions on this score.

HOWARD CARTER

Profiles In Science

The morning of Nov. 4, 1922, Howard Carter (1873-1939) stood breathless at the top of a flight of 16 steps in the Valley of the Kings, a valley in which many of the ancient pharaohs of Egypt had hidden their tombs.

Most of these tombs had been opened during the last 30 centuries by bandits and conquerors who carried away their contents, but the grave Carter found was still sealed. It was the tomb of Tutankhamen, who reigned in Egypt 3200 years ago. His discovery made Carter the world's most famous archeologist.

Tutankhamen's tomb was the first one found intact. Its contents gave Egyptologists much information about the Nile civilization of which Tutankhamen was the boy king for a short while.

The mummy was enclosed in a solid gold coffin, which was itself enclosed in two outer shells of wood. The three coffins were inside an enormous sarcophagus of quartz, which was hidden in four shells of sculptured granite. The pharaoh's head and shoulders were masked with enameled gold, an emerald gold necklace hung round his neck and a gold belt was round his waist.

The tomb itself had four rooms filled with a variety of beds, chairs, alabaster cups and plates, musical instruments, religious symbols, weapons and all the bejeweled and gilt trappings of royalty.

Carter's persistence in the search for the hidden tomb of Tutankhamen had resulted in one of the greatest archeological finds in history. He had begun looking for the tomb in 1907, and his diggers several times had come within yards of the buried flight of stairs that led to the burial chambers under many feet of desert sand.

After finding the steps, Carter, a native of Norfolk, England, telegraphed his patron, the Earl of Carnarvon, and waited for Carnarvon to come to Egypt before breaking the tomb's seal.

Carnarvon stood behind Carter as the archeologist first looked inside. "Is there anything there?" Lord Carnarvon asked, and Carter replied, "There are marvels here."

On the wall of the crypt, the archeologist found a warning carved. It has been translated: "Death shall come on swift wings to him who touches Pharaoh's tomb."

When Lord Carnarvon died the next year—of an infected mosquito bite—the "curse" of Tutankhamen became a news and legend. Of the 20 Europeans who entered the tomb, several died suddenly and prematurely, but most died after a normal number of years. Carter himself was 66 when he died, and John Kinnaman, the last man to enter the tomb, died in California in 1961 at the age of 84. He was the last survivor.

The treasures taken from "King Tut's" tomb are now in the Cairo Museum.

The Apathy

Newark, N.J.

Mass production on war work is what won World Wars I and II, turning out two to three times the foe's capacity. Now there is not enough evidence to warrant complacency. Were war to break out, even if we had a predominance, which we obviously do not, we would be unable to hurl instrumentalities to match or overmatch them at strategic pinpoints.

Mass production does not seem to be the order of this day on war work. But we would like to know that we are really "rolling" the launchers and super-missiles at the same rate as new cars, or better.

From conversations with college students, apparently few take up science, engineering, math and orbital as compared with the practical courses. An almost impenetrable wall of indifference seems to exist and this could be fatal to the Western cause unless we quadruple our output and advance of true scientific men.

They are frightened stiff in India. China has the total initiative in Asia. The U.S.A. likewise is just waiting to see, waiting presumably for the Soviets to lie down and expire, having broken with China!

Highway Signs

Lincoln, Neb.

I thought there could be no road signs erected along the side of the Interstate Highway. Now there is another one along the roadside to Omaha and just recently I noted several signs advertising Pioneer Village in Minden.

It is a shame that this beautiful highway has to be plagued with these advertising mediums. The Highway Department is doing a beautiful job of landscaping and I hope that they will take steps to halt the erection of billboards.

A COMMUTER

Freedoms?

Lincoln, Neb.

I have just finished reading "I. G.'s" account on freedom in the April 25 Star.

No doubt what he means he likes is the freedom to incur huge government deficits that will never be paid in the lifetime of those now living. Or perhaps he likes the freedom to send all of our gold out of Ft. Knox so we have no stability left for the dollar. Perhaps he likes the freedom of race riots incited by professional agitators.

Or perhaps he likes the freedom of government's being in and regulating business. Or the freedom of taking private property from one person and selling it to another as in urban renewal.

Or the freedom to send our tax dollar to Washington and have it returned to us after bureaucracy has taken out its large slice.

Or perhaps he likes the freedom of "managed news," or just enough truth not to upset people. Or perhaps he likes the freedom of playing tag with dictatorship only 90 miles away.

If he likes all these freedoms, then truly he is comfortably ensconced out of the current opposition.

Battle Creek, Neb.

Mrs. Williams says The Star was not presenting facts when it charged that the American Farm Bureau Federation is trying to gain control of the farming industry. I suggest she inform herself on what this organization has done in the past and is now doing.

We know that Mr. Shuman is waging a battle to defeat the wheat referendum with the excuse that it will take away the farmer's freedom. He has not denied the charge that a large brewery is paying F. B. a fabulous amount of money to defeat the bill.

The F. B. has a theme towards subsidies affects only farmers.

At one time, F. B. received $94,000 from the American Steamship Owners Association to convince Congress it should continue subsidies to them. History and the record show the F. B. also served for pay for such firms as Portland Cement, Copper and Brass Research Association, National Automobile Chamber and Ball Brothers, makers of fruit jars.

When news of these extracurricular activities on the part of a large farm organization reached Congress, they threatened a full investigation.

posed will be of benefit. Also, it can be argued that the cut in individual rates will be of assistance to industry by providing the American people with additional purchasing power for the hard goods of our economy.

It is easy to argue whether the economy is given greatest assistance through increased purchasing power or increased profits for capital investment but the argument can be one only of degrees. Certainly, both purchasing power and available capital funds are vital ingredients of our system.

Those who entertain deficit spending fears should remember that the deficit can be wiped out, if it ever is, only by a healthy economy. The purpose of the tax cut is to give a healthy glow to the source of funds, personal and corporate income, from which any deficit payment must come.

Cat In The Machinery

While the world apprehensively eyes the trigger of nuclear calamity it takes some reassurance in the belief that the bigger the war the bigger must be the provocation. And it can imagine no provocation large enough to cause the destruction of civilization.

But it doesn't always work that way. A good looking lady by the name of

This has led to the reaching of a destination as the paramount end of things. The idea is not to leisurely enjoy yourself as you ramble along toward some uncertain place, not really too concerned over whether you get there or not. The idea has been to get as quickly as you could to a selected spot and then go like mad in absorbing everything that is there. You wouldn't go east, west or any direction for what you might find on the way, but rather, for what you would find only when you did get there. Thus, it was some kind of peculiar makeup in you that would cause you to take three or four days getting to your destination. The smarter person either took a rapid means of transportation or drove 24 hours a day, never so much as a mile an hour below the legal limits.

Now, however, those who just like a leisurely drive through the country for enjoyment of the scenery need not feel in doing so like they are about to be caught stealing a cherry pie off the kitchen window sill. The pleasure can now be pursued as an adult and mature pastime because it happens to be the major recreation in America today.

Maybe you don't believe that riding along in a car is recreation but recreation these days has come to mean anything that one does in filling his leisure time, even if it is just sitting in a rocker on the front porch. A report by the Automobile Manufacturers Association, which tells you every conceivable fact there is about cars and their owners, shows that automobile riding for sightseeing and relaxation is engaged in often by 47 per cent of the American people.

The next nearest activity is picnicking which is done often by 31 per cent of the American people. And in all forms of vacationing, the car is the mode of transportation 82 per cent of the time.

The facts are concurred in by the Department of Interior which lists driving for pleasure as the most popular form of outdoor recreation. And to anyone a part of this large segment of the nation, the facts are easy to understand. The breathtaking sights that await you along the highways of America are equal to or better than can be seen in any part of the world.

Perhaps it is some distant place such as Yosemite National Park in California or the colorful New England states that you can remember best but even your own immediate area offers and endless panorama of beauty and enchantment. And most people do find what they want pretty close to home as 50 per cent of the families vacation within 500 miles of their homes.

Montgomery Parley Similar To Vienna

In some respects the confrontation between Brother Bob Kennedy, the attorney general, and Gov. George Wallace, governor of Alabama, was like the confrontation between the President and Nikita Khrushchev in Vienna, two years ago. Both in Vienna and in Montgomery, the protagonists agreed to disagree, but to keep in touch regarding the future.

In neither case, furthermore, did the Kennedys promise not to keep troops out of Alabama, or missiles out of Russia. But they did promise to use restraint.

However, there was one piece of repartee between the attorney general and the governor of Alabama which brought smiles to both.

Governor Wallace was telling Bob Kennedy about his support for his brother. "I supported your brother for vice president in 1956 when he was opposed by Senator Kefauver," he said. "And I supported him for President in 1960 and went out and made speeches for him."

"From what I read in the newspapers," interposed the attorney general, "you do not plan to do the same in 1964."

Governor Wallace did not deny that he would oppose Kennedy for re-election. He went on to say that neither party had been very kind to the South—especially the Democrats.

"You have to remember," he said, "that the South has been the most faithful supporter of the Democratic party. At one time the only Democrats in the Congress were from the South. If we had deserted you, there would have been no Democratic party in Washington."

After some pleasant preliminaries, Attorney General Kennedy brought up the federal court order regarding integration and asked what the governor planned to do at the University of Alabama when the question arose in the fall.

The governor gave his standard statement that he delivered all during his election campaign that he would stand in the doorway of the university or any school house and resist integration as long as he could. But he added that he did not believe in violence.

Kennedy expressed the hope that the problem could be kept in the courts, "not in the streets."

Wallace agreed, but said he had an obligation to the people of Alabama.

The governor pressed the attorney general regarding plans for the use of troops, but added that he had an obligation as attorney general to enforce the mandate of the courts.

On the whole, the attorney general did not charm Governor Wallace as much as he charmed some of the other people in Montgomery. Though pickets demonstrated against him, there were also about a thousand people in the state capital who greeted him warmly and a number of whom asked him for his autograph.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Exile Government Not The Answer

WASHINGTON — For all the passionate partisanship that Cuba has generated, it is possible one lesson has been learned—the United States cannot impose a government on the Cuban people made up of exiles, no matter how dedicated and devoted they may be.

The more realistic and hard-headed among the Cuban exile groups have themselves come to realize this in the aftermath of the angry charges made by Jose Miro Cardona in resigning as head of the Cuban Revolutionary Council. Miro Cardona's letter with its confused accusations would not have attracted so much attention if it had not been for the bumbling efforts of the State Department to anticipate and counteract it.

The Revolutionary Council was one of the unhappy hangovers from the Bay of Pigs fiasco. The President compounded the error in his speech to the returned Cuban prisoners in Miami last Christmas. He seemed to be putting his stamp of approval on the Council as the instrument for the overthrow of Fidel Castro and, by implication at least, as the core of a new government.

Playing exile politics has been one of the most mischief-making elements in the whole Cuban mess. The worst offender, certainly in the months leading up to the Bay of Pigs, was the Central Intelligence Agency. The shores of recent history are strewn with the wrecks of government imposed in the wake of American intervention. The trouble begins after the Marines have restored order. The result is too often a Trujillo in the Dominican Republic or a Somoza in Nicaragua. The leader installed, thanks to American power, looks to Washington and not to his own people for guidance. A disastrous entanglement ensues and, as we have seen in the Dominican Republic, American force in a somewhat more subtle form is finally used to get rid of an incredibly cruel dictator.

As to how Castro is removed and what comes next, the administration has for the time being no answers. In the interval while waiting further developments there is no fixed Cuban policy. Some White House advisers believe that by early September the Russian troops will have been removed and Premier Khrushchev will give this his own special twist by announcing that they have completed their mission which was to train Cubans to man the latest anti-aircraft missiles and to fly advanced MIGs.

There are those in the administration still talking hopefully of a Cuban government-in-exile. This would unite all exile faction. But the experience of World War II, when a dozen governments-in-exile waited for the allies to liberate Europe so they could return to power, should disabuse any illusions on this score.

HOWARD CARTER

Profiles In Science

The morning of Nov. 4, 1922, Howard Carter (1873-1939) stood breathless at the top of a flight of 16 steps in the Valley of the Kings, a valley in which many of the ancient pharaohs of Egypt had hidden their tombs.

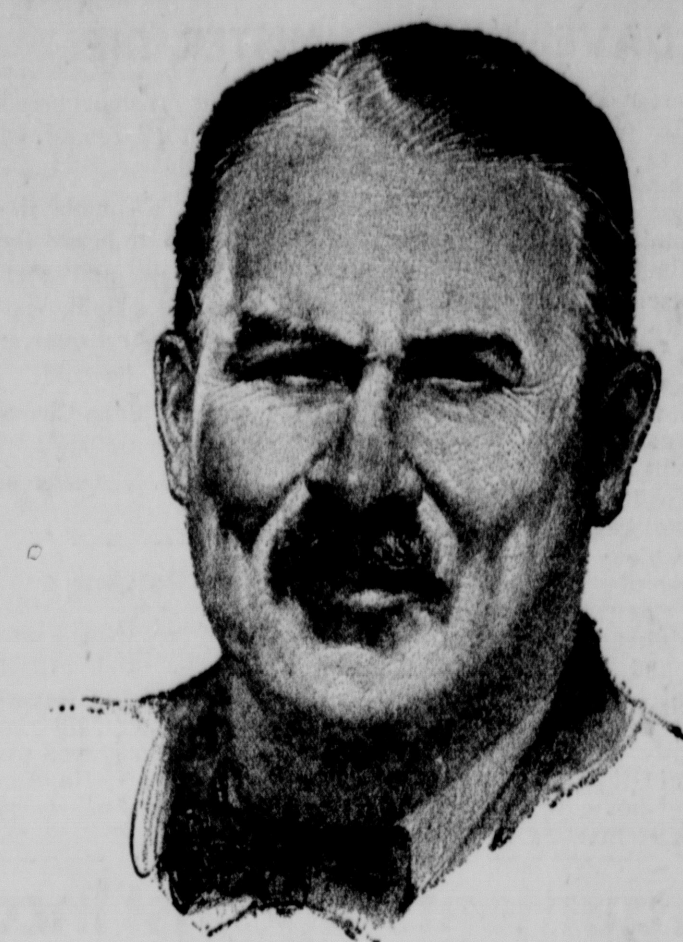

Most of these tombs had been opened during the last 30 centuries by bandits and conquerors who carried away their contents, but the grave Carter found was still sealed. It was the tomb of Tutankhamen, who reigned in Egypt 3200 years ago. Its discovery made Carter the world's most famous archaeologist.

Tutankhamen's tomb was the first one found intact. Its contents gave Egyptologists much information about the Nile civilization of which Tutankhamen was the boy king for a short while.

The mummy was enclosed in a solid gold coffin, which was itself enclosed in two outer shells of wood. The three coffins were inside an enormous sarcophagus of quartz, which was hidden in four shells of sculptured granite. The pharaoh's head and shoulders were masked with enameled gold, an enameled gold necklace hung round his neck and a gold belt was round his waist.

The tomb itself had four rooms filled with ancient beds, chairs, alabaster cups and plates, musical instruments, religious symbols, weapons and all the bejeweled and gilt trappings of royalty.

Carter's persistence in the search for the hidden tomb of Tutankhamen had resulted in one of the greatest archaeological finds in history. He had begun looking for the tomb in 1907, and his diggers several times had come within yards of the buried flight of stairs that led to the burial chambers under many feet of desert sand.

After finding the steps, Carter, a native of Norfolk, England, telegraphed his patron, the Earl of Carnarvon, and waited for Carnarvon to come to Egypt before breaking the tomb's seal.

Carnarvon stood behind Carter as the archaeologist first looked inside. "Is there anything there?" Lord Carnarvon asked, and Carter replied, "There are marvels here."

On the wall of the crypt, the archaeologist found a warning carved. It has been translated: "Death shall come on swift wings to him who touches Pharaoh's tomb."

When Lord Carnarvon died the next year—of an infected mosquito bite—the "curse" of Tutankhamen became news and legend. Of the 20 Europeans who entered the tomb, several died suddenly and prematurely, but most died after a normal number of years. Carter himself was 66 when he died, and John Kinnaman, the last man to enter the tomb, died in California in 1961 at the age of 84. He was the last survivor.

The treasures taken from "King Tut's" tomb are now in the Cairo Museum.

The Apathy

Newark, N.J.

Mass production on war work is what won World Wars I and II, turning out two to three times the foe's capacity. Now there is not enough evidence to warrant complacency. Were war to break out, even if we had a predominance, which we obviously do not, we would be unable to hurl instrumentalities to match or overmatch them at strategic pinpoints.

Mass production does not seem to be the order of this day on war work. But we would like to know that we are really "rolling" the launchers and super-missiles at the same rate as new cars, or better.

From conversations with college students, apparently few take up science, engineering, math and orbital as compared with the practical courses. An almost impenetrable wall of indifference seems to exist and this could be fatal to the Western cause unless we quadruple our output and advance of true scientific men.

They are frightened stiff in India. China has the total initiative in Asia. The USA likewise is just waiting to see, waiting presumably for the Soviets to lie down and expire, having broken with China!

Highway Signs

Lincoln, Neb.

I thought there could be no road signs erected along the side of the Interstate Highway. Now there is another one along the roadside to Omaha and just recently I noted several signs advertising Pioneer Village in Minden.

It is a shame that this beautiful highway has to be plagued with these advertising mediums. The Highway Department is doing a beautiful job of landscaping and I hope that they will take steps to halt the erection of billboards.

Freedoms?

Lincoln, Neb.

I have just finished reading "H. G.'s" account on freedom in the April 25 Star. No doubt what he means he likes is the freedom to incur huge government deficits that will never be paid in the lifetime of those now living. Or perhaps he likes the freedom to send all of our gold out of Ft. Knox so we have no stability left for the dollar. Perhaps he likes the freedom of race riots incited by professional agitators.

Or perhaps he likes the freedom of government's being in and regulating business. Or the freedom of taking private property from one person and selling it to another as in urban renewal.

Or the freedom to send our tax dollar to Washington and have it returned to us after bureaucracy has taken out its large slice.

Or perhaps he likes the freedom of "managed news," or just enough truth not to upset people. Or perhaps he likes the freedom of playing tag with dictatorship only 90 miles away.

If he likes all these freedoms, then truly he is comfortably ensconced out of the current opposition.

Farm Bureau

Battle Creek, Neb.

Mrs. Williams says The Star was not presenting facts when it charged that the American FarmBureau Federation is trying to gain control of the farming industry. I suggest she inform herself on what this organization has done in the past and is now doing.

We know that Mr. Shuman is waging a battle to defeat the wheat referendum with the excuse that it will take away the farmer's freedom. He has not denied the charge that a large brewery is paying F. B. a fabulous amount of money to defeat the bill.

The F. B. anathema towards subsidies affects only farmers.

At one time, F. B. received $94,000 from the American Steamship Owners Association to convince Congress it should continue subsidies to them. History and the record show the F. B. also served for pay for such firms as Portland Cement, Copper and Brass Research Association, National Automobile Chamber and Ball Brothers, makers of fruit jars.

When news of these extracurricular activities on the part of a large farm organization reached Congress, they threatened a full investigation.

tion. Even with the threat of a congressional scandal, the F. B. was undaunted.

Its next job was at $5,000 a month, paid by the chain stores to convince farmers that the chains were a god-send to agriculture.

These charges have never been denied by F. B. leaders. These days we find them busy peddling propaganda in behalf of the millers, bakers, cereal firms and many others. Many of these activities are printed in the daily newspapers and other news media. With the farm problem worsening every year, the F. B. offers no solutions, nor does it intend to. It quiets its members with the old "freedom" refrain. Let me say, when you are very poor, you are not very free.

The F.B.I. lists the main causes of communism as "poverty, exploitation by government and individuals, and most important, the concentration of the land and resources in the hands of the few."

Until farmers are well organized to manage their own affairs, we will have to rely on a fair and just government farm program to help us maintain a decent standard of living, lest we fall into one of the categories that would certainly lead to revolution.

Undersea Rockets Off Cuba

Miami Beach (UPI) — A free-lance reporter said Sunday that raiders on an airplane over Havana earlier this week detected what appeared to be Russian under-water missiles located on the ocean floor off Cuba.

Alexander Burke, who announced in Washington on Friday that he went along on the raid, said "technicians" sighted what appeared to be "Golem" missile installations, an underwater weapon which can be launched electronically, but which rests on the ocean floor instead of being carried aboard a submarine like the U.S. Polaris missiles.

Burke was not able to say what kind of device was used by technicians aboard the twin-engine airplane to detect the missiles.

"Remember, I was just along for the ride," he said.

At a news conference here, Burke said that at one point off the Cuban coast near Havana he heard a technician, whom he would not identify, say, "We got it, we got it!"

found something there off the north coast of Havana," Burke said.

Burke, 36, of New York, held a news conference here at the home of attorney Ellis Rubin.

He said the raiding party took off from an island south of Cuba and carried 3 unidentified men besides him.

Burke also said he knew of 8 Americans who at one time were imprisoned in Cuba and whose names have not been among those Americans released from Cuban jails. He said that as far as he knows, they are still in Cuba.

He identified them as: Walter Graham of Denver, Colo.; Joseph John Hogan, New York; Paul Leonard Jennings, and Andrew Barter, both of California; Samuel Lasky and Samuel Chanoff of New York; Naomi Stephenson, address unknown, and Martin David Silverman, of New York and Miami.

He said the State Department had a list of these names.

On the raid, Burke said one

100-pound bomb and 4 napalm bombs were thrown out the door of the plane over oil refineries on the outskirts of Havana.

He said he thought the 100-pound bomb went off "because we heard a boom," but said the people on the plane did not see any explosion behind them.

Airman Injured In One-Car Mishap

An airman was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital early Sunday morning with injuries suffered in a one-car accident on the Burlington Ave. bridge.

After receiving emergency treatment for a laceration of the scalp, Lawrence D. Lona was taken to the Air Base Hospital where he spent the night and then released.

Police said that Lona was southbound on Burlington and was alone at the time of the mishap.

Lona told officers that he "blacked-out" just before his vehicle struck the bridge.

Republicans Asked To Buy Tickets To Hear VP Johnson

Milwaukee (UPI) — The Democratic party of Wisconsin, which has run into difficulties selling $100-a-plate tickets to party members for a dinner at which Vice President Lyndon Johnson will speak Saturday, in effect appealed to Republicans this weekend for support.

Milwaukee political writer Cy Rice (of the Sentinel) reported that 1,000 letters were mailed during the weekend to business firms, 600 of them in Milwaukee, seeking to sell tickets or program advertising to persons the dinner backers acknowledged might be Republicans.

The letter, signed by dinner chairman Leo Crowley, board chairman of the Milwaukee Road, said:

"In this country we have a two-party system and many wish to keep it that way by giving support to both parties so that the system may remain healthy.

"Even if you are primarily a contributor to the other major political party you may still wish to contribute here," it said.

The letter called Johnson's visit "a compliment to Wisconsin in all walks of life."

It mentioned his importance as chairman of the space and aeronautical council, apparently hinting Johnson might be influential in distributing defense contracts.

Persons receiving the letter were told advertising was tax deductible, and one dinner ticket went with each $100 of advertising. If the recipient preferred not to advertise, there were two tickets enclosed in the envelope which he was encouraged to buy.

Patrick J. Lucey, state Democratic chairman, said while the party had invited non-Democrats to fund-raising dinners before, "It's the first time we've tried it on this scale."

Lucey said only 1,400 attendance is assured thus far. He had promised Johnson that attendance would exceed the 2,140 mark at a Republican dinner here March 9 at which New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller spoke.

Undersea Rockets Off Cuba

Miami Beach (UPI) — A free-lance reporter said Sunday that raiders on an air strike over Havana earlier this week detected what appeared to be Russian underwater missiles located on the ocean floor off Cuba.

Alexander Rorke, who announced in Washington on Friday that he went along on the raid, said "technicians" sighted what appeared to be "Golem" missiles installations, which rests on the ocean floor instead of being carried aboard a submarine like the U.S. Polaris missiles.

Rorke was not able to say what kind of device was used by technicians aboard the twin-engine airplane to detect the missiles.

"Remember, I was just along for the ride," he said.

At a news conference here, Rorke said that at one point off the Cuban coast near Havana he heard a technician, whom he would not identify, say, "We got it, we got it!"

He said he believed he found something there off the north coast of Havana," Rorke said.

Rorke, 36, of New York, held a news conference here at the home of attorney Ellis Rubin.

He said the raiding party took off from an island south of Cuba and carried 3 unidentified men besides him.

Rorke also said he knew of 8 Americans who at one time were imprisoned in Cuba and whose names have not been among those Americans released from Cuban jails. He said that as far as he knows, they are still in Cuba.

He identified them as: Walter Graham of Denver, Colo.; Joseph John Hogan, New York; Paul Leonard Jennings, and Andrew Barter, both of California; Samuel Lasky and Samuel Chanoff of New York; Naomi Stephenson, address unknown; and Martin David Silverman, of New York and Miami.

He said the State Department had a list of these names.

On the raid, Rorke said one

Johnson One Of 13 Dressers

New York (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson was named Sunday America's best-dressed man in public life.

Johnson headed the list of 13 best-dressed men selected by custom tailors and designers belonging to the Fashion Foundation of America.

The best dressed men in other categories:

Government — Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida.

Civic Affairs — Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

Society — Frank G. Hale, Palm Beach, Fla.

Screen — Hugh O'Brian.

Sports — Tommy McDonald of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Business — Samuel O. Newman of New York.

Press-communications — Bert Bacharach, syndicated columnist.

Designer — Robert Strong of New York.

Theater — David Merrick.

Recordings — Enoch Light, Vamand Records.

Reality — Bernard Grey, Eastchester, N. Y.

Night Clubs — Buddy Greco, entertainer.

Ben Russell, Wall Street custom tailor who is chairman of the men's division of the foundation, said new style trends accentuate the shoulders.

"Jackets will be shorter with suppressed waist lines and broader shoulders," he said. "Long side vents are gaining in high society popularity. The trend is away from narrow lapels."

"Trousers will have plain fronts and will continue to be narrow at the legs. Half tone hues with high sheen are in demand."

2 Plays Take Half Of Tony Awards Given

New York (UPI) — The musical "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" drama accounted for more than half of the Tony awards of the Broadway theatrical season Sunday night.

"Forum" won the nod in the musical play division, and Albee's play was the winning drama. "Forum" won 5 other awards, "Virginia Woolf" 4.

The winners were announced over a local television broadcast from the Americana Hotel's ballroom, where the sponsoring American Theater Wing held its 17 annual awards dinner-dance.

A committee of 5 nominated 71 individuals and plays in 21 categories and the 800 some members of the wing, theater professionals and patrons of the arts, balloted to choose the winners.

In addition there were 3 special awards: (1) Irving Berlin for "his distinguished contribution to the musical theater for these many years"; (2) W. McNeil Lowry in behalf of the Ford Foundation "for his and their distinguished support of the American theater"; (3) to the "Beyond the Fringe" company — Alan Bennett, Peter Cook, Jonathan Miller and Dudley Moore — "for their brilliance which has shattered all of the old conceptions of comedy."

Airman Injured In One-Car Mishap

An airman was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital early Sunday morning with injuries suffered in a one-car accident on the Burlington Ave. bridge.

After receiving emergency treatment for a laceration of the scalp, Lawrence D. Lona was taken to the Air Base Hospital where he spent the night and then released.

Police said that Lona was southbound on Burlington and was alone at the time of the mishap.

Lona told officers that he "black-out" just before his vehicle struck the bridge.

Republicans Asked To Buy Tickets To Hear VP Johnson

Milwaukee (UPI) — The Democratic party of Wisconsin, which has run into difficulties selling $100-a-plate tickets to party members for a dinner at which Vice President Lyndon Johnson will speak Saturday, in effect appealed to Republicans this weekend for support.

Milwaukee political writer Cy Rice (of the Sentinel) reported that 1,000 letters were mailed during the weekend to business firms, 600 of them in Milwaukee, seeking to sell tickets or program advertising to persons the dinner backers acknowledged might be Republicans.

The letter, signed by dinner chairman Leo Crowley, board chairman of the Milwaukee Road, said:

"In this country we have a two-party system and many wish to keep it that way by giving support to both parties so that the system may remain healthy."

"Even if you are primarily a contributor to the other major political party you may still wish to contribute here," it said.

The letter called Johnson's visit "a compliment to Wisconsin in all walks of life." It mentioned his importance as chairman of the space and aeronautical council, apparently hinting Johnson might be influential in distributing defense contracts.

Persons receiving the letter were told advertising was tax deductible, and one dinner ticket went with each $100 of advertising. If the recipient preferred not to advertise, there were two tickets enclosed in the envelope which he was encouraged to buy.

Patrick J. Lucey, state Democratic chairman, said while the party had invited non-Democrats to fund-raising dinners before, "It's the first time we've tried it on this scale."

Lucey said only 1,400 attendance is assured thus far. He had promised Johnson that attendance would exceed the 2,140 mark at a Republican dinner here March 9 at which New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller spoke.

School Board Candidates Say More Can, Should Be Done

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of 5 articles on the candidates running in the May 7th elections.)

By VIRG FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The 4 school board candidates believe the Lincoln public schools are doing a good job but express the general view that more can and should be done.

The candidates are Mrs. Betty M. Harris, housewife and graduate chemist; George W. (Bud) Knight, bank executive; Robert Magee, businessman; and Robert Wekesser, bank executive.

Mrs. Harris feels "the status of teachers is most important to the maintenance of good schools" and salaries should be "as high as feasible."

She would emphasize adequate library facilities, a guidance program that promotes "individual counseling" and "equal quality of curriculum and teaching staffs between the schools."

Knight's Aim

Knight said his aim would be "to suggest improvements as they appear needed."

Magee commented that "we have a good quality education system," but said his concern "is that we strive to improve it at all times."

"I must say that I set my standards high and will not settle for inferior, inadequate or incompetent schools, curriculum, books, instructional aids or teachers."

Wekesser suggests that "our complex society requires we become knowledgeable in the field of financial affairs."

'Neglect Areas'

"We strive to educate our children so that they can increase their earning capacity and yet we neglect to teach them how to manage their earnings," he stated. "This is not a local situation but one for which there is a growing awareness nationally."

The candidates were asked for their views on how more efficient use might be made

Mrs. Harris

Knight

Magee

of the tax dollar for education.

Knight suggested that greater use of school buildings by the general public would give the community a greater return on its tax dollar.

Mrs. Harris said the "value of good education is measured in learning, not dollars" and suggested "more learning per dollar" might be obtained from decreasing the teacher turnover, in a set teacher projects, more supplemental teaching aids and greater utilization of community resources.

Utilize Time

Noting a national estimate that teachers spend 43% of their time in activities other than teaching, Wekesser urged that the teacher be relieved of as many clerical and non-professional duties as possible.

"The teacher should be able to utilize her time for teaching to the fullest extent," he explained.

On the subject whether the school day or school year should be lengthened or maintained at its present level, Wekesser said he didn't think the school board "can lengthen or stagger the school year (using a 4-quarter system) until the general public wants the change."

'Little Need'

Mrs. Harris said "there seems to be little need at the present time for lengthening the school year," but said the question should be given future consideration.

"There's little need to lengthen the elementary school day," she said. "However, there may be more merit to a longer junior and senior high school day, which is now optional. Pupil benefit and cost would have to be weighed."

Knight would maintain the school year at its present level, but posed the possibility ty "of an earlier start of the school year with a resultant earlier end."

Knight said he favors more use of instructional aids and educational television and "continued improvement should be shown in this area."

Changing Needs

"As our society and economic conditions are constantly changing so is the need for current instructional aids in education," he added.

Wekesser said "any instructional aid that can help the student learn faster and more fully should be used," but he also pointed out that "good teachers will always remain the backbone of our instructional system."

A similar view was expressed by Magee.

Mrs. Harris also said "such aids as prove to be a help to the teacher should be utilized," but pointed out their value to the teaching process and quality should be carefully measured before use.

In addition to their individual qualifications and backgrounds, each candidate has children in the Lincoln school system.

Two will be elected in the May 7 general election to 6-year terms on the 6-member board of education.

Comrad Hilton's steel-stone-and-glass contribution to the London scene opened for hotel business amid brave speeches foul weather and some local consternation.

As predicted gloomily in the House of Lords, the elegant rooftop restaurant not only overlooks London in a skyscraping panorama. It also gives a fine uncluttered view of the Queen's backyard—a couple of football fields' lengths away.

The lords got all stormed up about this last year when the London Hilton was being rivet-gunned skyward.

Lord Barbazon commented to the nodding peers

"When the Dorchester Hotel was built in Park Lane, the authorities limited it to 9 stories. Now it appears an American has somehow got permission to build 27 stories only 200 yards away."

No one rose to point out that this was a $22 million investment in the tourist business—No. 1 earner of foreign exchange for Britain.

I didn't read either that the financial papa is England's Charles Clore.

The papers and peers made it sound as though Hilton had somehow got a shady license to run a peep show. It was most unfair.

So we strike today's blow for justice.

Well, "occasional bright periods" as the British forecasters predict hopefully into the showery day.

London was agreeably surprised that the slim, Y-shaped building did not clash with the skyline of smoking chimney pots.

"Flipping great American monster," was our milkman's comment when it was all red structural steel.

Now that it has been faced with gray Portland stone, the London Hilton looks as though it had stood in Park Lane—well, not since the Iron Duke lived across the way. But quite awhile.

The hotel opened with the usual assortment of press. If Hilton and his press agents get better at this at each opening, I think we are learning to run through our drill in more polished fashion, too.

The weather has been rainy. It's always rainy in England. But the forecast this morning was for 30 straight days of rain. The London gray skies have been doing their best to make the forecast a prophet with honor.

Even so, a fan-sized crowd came around in the rain to see the ceremonies.

More pass through the hotel—London buildings just don't grow on skyscraper principles. It is a little amazing to hear people of the second largest city in the world commenting on the extraordinary sensation of looking down from 30 floors.

Guides have avoided pointing out the view into the Buckingham Palace yard.

There's a story going around that binoculars will be banned from the glassed-in restaurant on top.

The Right Honorable Reginald Maudling, Chancellor of the Exchequer, hustled over to make the opening speech. Hilton replied in generous fashion.

The Atlantic Alliance and Anglo-American friendship were spoken of favorably. Probably the major point of it all is that it adds 512 first-class rooms to London which gets overcrowded during the season. Local hotels got pretty snug about reservations.

I notice the nearby Dorchester is doing a lot of thoughtful remodeling right now.

Hilton will open 12 more hotels this year, bringing the international chain to 58. He pointed out that the chain referral system should bring 60,000 people to the London Hilton each year.

It's a nice built-in business.

This Beaver Has Really Been Busy North Of Lincoln

By NANCY RAY
Star Staff Writer

There's a beaver who's been busy as a beaver recently. His handiwork, a 40-ft. dam and rapidly filling pond, is in plain sight of U.S. 77 north of Lincoln and just south of the Interstate interchange.

The pond will soon be large enough to be listed as a lake on the map. It was formed from a stream, barely more than a trickle, running into Salt Creek.

Among the feats of industriousness evident at the scene (above) are two 25-to-30 ft. trees, at right, felled for future construction projects or perhaps just for their succulent spring greenery, and the completed dam, at left, which was built mainly of mud and limbs, but also includes a few beer cans, a tomato ketchup bottle and a fence post.

At left, the camera-shy critter is caught collecting bark and twigs for future use. At right, is an ingenious canal system to give the beaver a handy drive-in avenue—and fast escape route—from the adjoining bounty of an unpicked cornfield.

Miles Of Famed Boardwalk Destroyed By 9-Alarm Fire

New York (UPI) — A 9-alarm fire fanned by brisk ocean breezes Sunday night destroyed a 3-block long section of the boardwalk at Coney Island, one of the nation's most popular seaside resorts.

A bath house and more than 100 concession stands also were destroyed. One fireman was injured but not critically.

The amusement park, normally jammed on a weekend during the summer months, was practically deserted when the fire broke out.

Flames leaped 100 feet into the air and ate through the tinder-dry wood of the boardwalk to within a few feet of the famed giant amusement park Steeplechase, a towering rollercoaster complex.

First Time

It was the first time the Brooklyn Fire Department had to call on Manhattan and other boroughs of the city for help in fighting a fire at Coney Island since the great Luna Park fire of World War II.

The boardwalk stretches for 3½ miles along the Atlantic Ocean.

"It looked for a time like the whole place was going up in flames," said Benjamin Albin, one of the 100,000 residents who live year-round on Coney Island.

The first alarm was sounded at 8 p.m. EST and within a matter of minutes went to 9 alarms. Before the fire was declared under control at 9:44 p.m. it brought more than 200 firemen and at least 60 pieces of equipment into the fight.

The fire broke out right in the heart of the midway with its cluster of hot dog and frozen custard stands, penny arcades and games of chance.

Breeze

A 15-mile-per-hour breeze from offshore turned the roaring flames into a giant blowtorch, aiming the fire and a cascade of blazing firebrands at the thousands of frame summer homes and business buildings making up the rest of Coney Island.

Fire Department officials sent two dozen teams of men through the island to check rooftops and make sure the fire did not break out elsewhere.

A Coast Guard and city fireboat came to the scene, but the beach is so wide at that point, they could do little to help.

Killing Of Cuban Spy May Threaten Treaty

By BEM PRICE
AP Military Affairs Writer

Washington (AP) — The killing of Ruben Lopez Sabariego by a U.S. Marine may jeopardize the treaty by which the United States occupies the Naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Further, there was a second mysterious death about the time Lopez was killed.

This second death, that of a onetime base employee named Rodolfo Rosell, has never been explained through the Cubans charge he was killed by U.S. agents on Guantanamo.

The Lopez death has long been known to reporters frequenting the base — but they couldn't prove it: Navy and Marine officials at the base simply would not discuss the case, walking away from inquisitive reporters.

Now William A. Szili, former Marine lieutenant, has talked — the only principal in the case to do so.

Szili, in a copyrighted story appearing in the Philadelphia Bulletin, said Lopez had been shot by Capt. Arthur J. Jackson in self-defense.

Szili, seeking reinstatement in the corps, also has told his story to members of Congress.

The ex-Marine said Lopez had been apprehended in the magazine area on leeward point where Marines were employed to defend the jet air field.

Elderly Battling Price Floor Laws

Washington (UPI) — The National Council of Senior Citizens has quietly thrown its resources into a fight against legislation that would allow manufacturers set minimum retail prices at which their brand-name products can be sold through out the country.

The legislation has the powerful backing of organized druggists, jewelers, clothing retailers and other small businesses. They contend that it is needed to protect independent retailers against unfair price-cutting by discount houses and other competitors.

In throwing its weight against the proposal, the National Council of Senior Citizens has broadened the original purpose for which it was created in 1960. The initial aim was simply to rally elderly persons behind President Kennedy's controversial proposal to provide hospitalization insurance through the Social Security program.

William R. Hutton, deputy-director of the organization, contends that enactment of the resale price maintenance bill would "further increase the already overburdensome cost of medical care for older people."

"The pleas of the elderly in support of the desperately needed measure to provide hospital insurance through Social Security are frequently drowned out by powerful propaganda from some of the same financial sources which are promoting this new bill," he said.

The price maintenance bill is pending before the House Commerce Committee. Hutton plans to appear before that group as a witness soon to set forth the objections of his group.

The council now claims a membership of more than 1,500,000 old people including individual members and membership of some 1,500 affiliated old people's clubs throughout the country.

Although the pending bill would exempt prescription drugs, Hutton argues that old people use many drugs — on prescription and without prescription. Moreover, he says that enactment of the legislation would outlaw a procedure under which elderly persons in several states are given a discount on drugs ranging from 10 to 25%. The bill, he said, "would not only forbid these discounts — but would actually raise prices beyond the current level."

A Coast Guard and city fireboat came to the scene, but the beach is so wide at that point, they could do little to help.

Traffic on the belt parkway, a major thoroughway between Manhattan and Long Island, hampered fire trucks coming from Manhattan. The parkway is elevated and less than a quarter-mile from the scene of the fire, and curious drivers watching the flames caused a jam that stretched for miles in each direction.

Fire Department officials said it was the first time since the Luna Park fire that the island's special high-pressure water system was used.

Coney Island, because of the thousands of highly flammable buildings, has a water system separate from city mains that can produce so much pressure (at least 175 pounds) that pumper trucks are not needed.

Szili said Lopez was shot outside the fence dividing this base from Cuba. That would have put the death on Cuban soil.

At the time the Cubans charged Lopez had been killed by American agents.

In any event, the affair was hushed up by the Marines — and the Navy — and 4 Marine officers, including Jackson and Szili, were ultimately ousted from the corps.

FUN NEWS IN SUBURBIA

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE

Strange are the things that go through little people's minds—strange but delightful, that is! Just had to take a moment out this morning to tell you about a most delightful experience with one of Suburbia's little residents.

A most courteous young man answered the phone last week when the inquiring Suburbia reporter called for news from Country Club Terrace, and very politely said that he would call his mother.

A moment later the same little voice could be heard in the background, "It's for you mamma and I think it's the woman from church she sounds like a player."

Oh the wonderful world of little people!

Not all Suburban residents threw the reporter so completely off guard, however, for we did find out several little newsbits we should relate this morning.

Do know that there was a birthday celebration in Country Club Terrace last week, and that was on Saturday when Miss Genly Lewis daughter of Dr. and Miss George E. Lewis, celebrated her seventh anniversary at a luncheon given by Miss Lewis for Genly and a dozen of her young lady friends.

Those sharing in the birthday festivities were Lotie Ackie, Jo Ellen Cleaver, Diane Moseman, Ann Schieget Lynn and Barbara Chapin, Kathy Kimball, Nancy Kroege, Susan Maude, Karen Christensen, Paula Hubertus, and Kendra Schwab.

Country Club Terrace residents who entertained Lincoln and out of town visitors on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Pfoltner and their daughters, Debbie and Lin.

Coming from Omaha to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Pfoltner and their daughters were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wynne. Those other Lincoln residents who joined the group for an afternoon visit were Mr. and Mrs. James Carney and their family.

Another birthday was celebrated last Tuesday, and that was the 12th anniversary of Master Reggie Hickman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hickman. Reggie marked his special occasion by bringing two friends, Jim Kuescher and Lannie Ross, home for dinner and then, as a special birthday treat, passing up his homework for an evening at the movies with his two friends.

Vacationing in Florida these days are Country Club Terrace residents Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Price Jr., who will be spending two weeks in that sunny state.

Mr. and Mrs. Price left Lincoln on Thursday, and arriving just in time to say good-bye was Mr. Price's mother, Mrs. Marvin Price, who will be spending the next two weeks with her grandchildren, Terry, Shaun, and Marilyn. Mrs. Price Sr. meets her in Sioux City, Iowa.

And just recently back from an 11 day vacation along the west coast are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alles and their daughters Carol and Judy.

Mr. and Mrs. Alles and their daughters returned to Lincoln a week ago after spending several days in Los Angeles, Disney Land, San Francisco (Fisheiman's Wharf included), and Reno, Nev.

Guests at the Jerry T. Trimble home this weekend were former Lincoln Air Force Base residents Capt. and Mrs. David Wyse who spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Trimble and their sons, J. Scott and Christopher.

Capt. and Mrs. Wyse who moved from the Lincoln area a year and a half ago, now are living in Anchorage, Mich., where Capt. Wyse is stationed at Ketchikan Air Force Base.

The wedding of Miss Gustafson and Alvin John C. Munn of San Leandro, Calif. will take place on Saturday, May 18, at the First Baptist Church Southern.

For her matron of honor the bride elect has chosen Mrs. Jon Jorgensen of North Platte, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Janet Morgan and Miss Robert Carter.

Mr. Munn, who is stationed at the Lincoln Air Force Base, has named Benjamin H. Brown to serve as his best man, and seating the guests for the 8 o'clock service will be Patsy Preston, Roger Jones, Roger Gustafson, brother of the bride to be, and Gary Rampehal.

Planning a June wedding is Miss Cheryl Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Allen, who has announced that her marriage to John Kempston will take place on Saturday, June 15.

For the 8 o'clock evening service, to be solemnized in the chapel of St. Paul Methodist Church the bride to be has named Miss Kathy Schuler as her maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Jennie Lutz and Miss Diane Hornby, and Miss Cathy Carter will be the flower girl. Carrying the ings will be Kenny Carver. Darold Kempston will serve his brother as best man, and seating the guests will be Wayne Hunt and Jerry Kempston.

A mid-June bride elect is Miss Barbara Bell, senior at the University of Nebraska and a member of Towne Club, who has chosen Saturday, June 15, as the date for her marriage to Gary Hoffman of Pekin, Ill.

The 7 o'clock service will be solemnized at the Salem Congregational Church.

Mrs. Robert Chinnock of Hemingford will attend her sister as matron of honor, and bridesmaid will be Mrs. Ron Hoffman. Miss Mary Downard and Miss Barbara Fritche will be the bridesmaids and attending her aunt as miniature bride.

will be Mary Jane Chinnock.

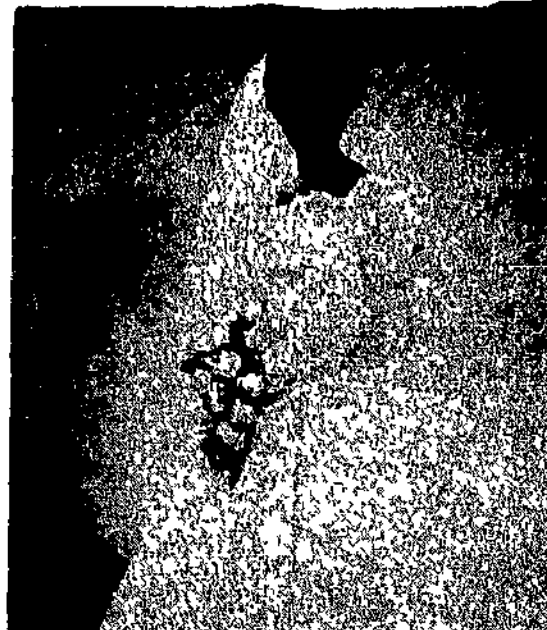

Ringbearers will be Tom Chinnock and Mary Hoffman.

Serving his brother as best man will be Ron Hoffman, and the ushers will be Robert Chinnock of Hemingford, Virgil Meintz and Robert Thoman.

Lighted candles and arrangements of white poinsettias, chrysanthemums and gladioli appointed the altar of St. Thomas Aquinas Church where the marriage of Miss Mary Dianne Cabela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cabela of Chappell, to Lt. Don L. McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis McKenzie of Hebron, took place on Saturday morning, April 27. The Rev. J. Rawley Myers solemnized the 10 o'clock ceremony, and Miss Richard Neal Cabela played the wedding music.

Miss Gary Pimlin of Denver the matron of honor, Miss Jane Cabela of Chappell, who was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Dianne Detemeyer of Boulder, Colo., Miss Judy Binney of Omaha and Miss Donna Sue Wedberg wore alike frocks of Copenhagen blue pean de soie and they carried cascade bouquets of blue chrysanthemums and lavender florettes.

Stephen McKenzie of Scarsdale, N.Y. served as best man, and seating the guests were Roger Wiedel of Hebron, Claus Trimble of Omaha, Robin Snider and William Alledge, both of Denver.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white silk peau de soie. The sculptured bodice was designed with a bateau neckline patterned with Alencon lace re-embroidered with seed pearls which slipped into bracelet length sleeves. The lace and pearl motif was repeated on the voluminous skirt which was completed with a chapel train. A Juliet cap of lace, edged with pearls, held in place her tiered veil, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids.

After a honeymoon trip to the Bahamas Lt. McKenzie will return to New Orleans where the bridegroom is stationed.

The bride attended Loreto Heights College in Denver, and was graduated in June from the University of

MRS. RICHARD BROWN

Roger Silver served as best man, and seating the guests were Norval Wiles, Syracuse, Herbert Kuster, Forest B. Brown, Jr., Jim Brown, Bob Shaw and Tom Pyron.

White Chantilly lace and silk organza fashioned the bride's gown. Seed pearls and rickrack sequins dotted the lace of the long-sleeved basque, and the full skirt of organza was trimmed at the back waist with a cluster of fabric roses and extended into a chapel train. Her silk illusion veil was held by a jeweled crown, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white butterfly roses and Stephanotis.

Upon their return from a honeymoon trip Mr. Easton and his bride will reside at 625 So. 35th St., in Omaha.

The bride, whose mother came from Esbjerg, Sweden to attend the wedding, attended school in London and Paris. Mr. Easton, the grandson of Mrs. Charles C. Stahl and Mrs. James Easton both of Lincoln, attended the University of Nebraska, and Omaha University.

Dental Group Will Meet

Members of the Nebraska State Dental Assistants' Association will meet in Lincoln this week for the group's 45th annual conference.

A capping ceremony and tea Sunday afternoon at the Lincoln Hotel was followed by a meeting of the board and dinner to open the 3 day conference which will be highlighted by the annual banquet on Tuesday evening. New officers will be installed at that time and awards will be presented.

Miss Sibyl Roach of Omaha, state president, will preside, and guest speakers will include Dr. R. W. Shady, dean of Creighton University, and Richard McCollum, Omaha; Miss Matilda Bremer, Minneapolis, and Dr. Richard Bradley, Lincoln.

The conference will conclude on Wednesday when the members will attend the Nebraska State Dental Society clinics program at Peabody Auditorium.

FUN NEWS IN SUBURBIA

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE

Strange are the things that go through little people's minds—strange but delightful, that is! Just had to take a moment out this morning to tell you about a most delightful experience with one of Suburbia's littler residents.

A most courteous young man answered the phone last week when the inquiring Suburbia reporter called for news from Country Club Terrace, and very politely said that he would call his mother.

A moment later the same little voice could be heard in the background, "It's for you mamma, and I think it's the woman from church, she sounds like a prayer."

Oh, the wonderful world of little people!

Not all Suburban residents threw the reporter so completely off guard, however, for we did find out several little newsbits we should relate this morning.

Do know that there was a birthday celebration in Country Club Terrace last week, and that was on Saturday when Miss Gentry Lewis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George E. Lewis, celebrated her seventh anniversary at a luncheon given by Mrs. Lewis for Gentry and a dozen of her young lady friends.

Those sharing in the birthday festivities were Lorie Acklie, Jo Ellen Cleaver, Diane Moseman, Ann Schleger, Lynn and Barbara Chapin, Kathy Kimball, Nancy Kroeger, Susan Maude, Karen Christensen, Paula Hubertus, and Kendra Schwab.

Country Club Terrace residents who entertained Lincoln and out-of-town visitors on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. J. Harold Pfohlner and their daughters, Debbie and Iris.

Coming from Omaha to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Pfohlner and their daughters were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wynne. Those other Lincoln residents who joined the group for an afternoon visit were Mr. and Mrs. James Carney and their family.

Another birthday was celebrated last Tuesday, and that was the 12th anniversary of Master Reggie Hickman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hickman. Reggie marked his special occasion by bringing two friends, Jim Kruescher and Lannie Ross, home for dinner and then, as a special birthday treat, passing up his homework for an evening at the movies with his two friends.

Vacationing in Florida these days are Country Club Terrace residents Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Price Jr., who will be spending two weeks in that sunny state.

Mr. and Mrs. Price left Lincoln on Thursday, and arriving just in time to say good-bye was Mr. Price's mother, Mrs. Marvin Price, who will be spending the next two weeks with her grandchildren, Terry, Shaun, and Marilyn Rae. Mrs. Price Sr. meets her in Sioux City, Iowa.

And just recently back from an 11-day vacation along the west coast are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alles and their daughters, Carol and Judy.

Mr. and Mrs. Alles and their daughters returned to Lincoln a week ago after spending several days in Los Angeles, Disney Land, San Francisco (Fisherman's Wharf included), and Reno, Nev.

Guests at the Jerry T. Trimble home this weekend were former Lincoln Air Force Base residents, Capt. and Mrs. David Wyse, who spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Trimble and their sons, J. Scott and Christopher.

Capt. and Mrs. Wyse, who moved from the Lincoln area a year and a half ago, now are living in Kincheloe, Mich., where Capt. Wyse is stationed at Kincheloe Air Force Base.

rings will be Kenny Carver. Darold Kempston will serve his brother as best man, and seating the guests will be Wayne Hunt and Jerry Kempston.

A mid-June bride-elect is Miss Barbara Bell, senior at the University of Nebraska and a member of Towne Club, who has chosen Saturday, June 15, as the date for her marriage to Gary Hoffman of Pekin, Ill.

The 7 o'clock service will be solemnized at the Salem Congregational Church.

Mrs. Robert Chinnock of Hemingford will attend her sister as matron of honor, and bridesmatron will be Mrs. Ron Hoffman. Miss Mary Downard and Miss Barbara Fritchie will be the bridesmaids, and attending her aunt as miniature bride will be Mary Jane Chinnock.

Ringbearers will be Tom Chinnock and Mary Hoffman.

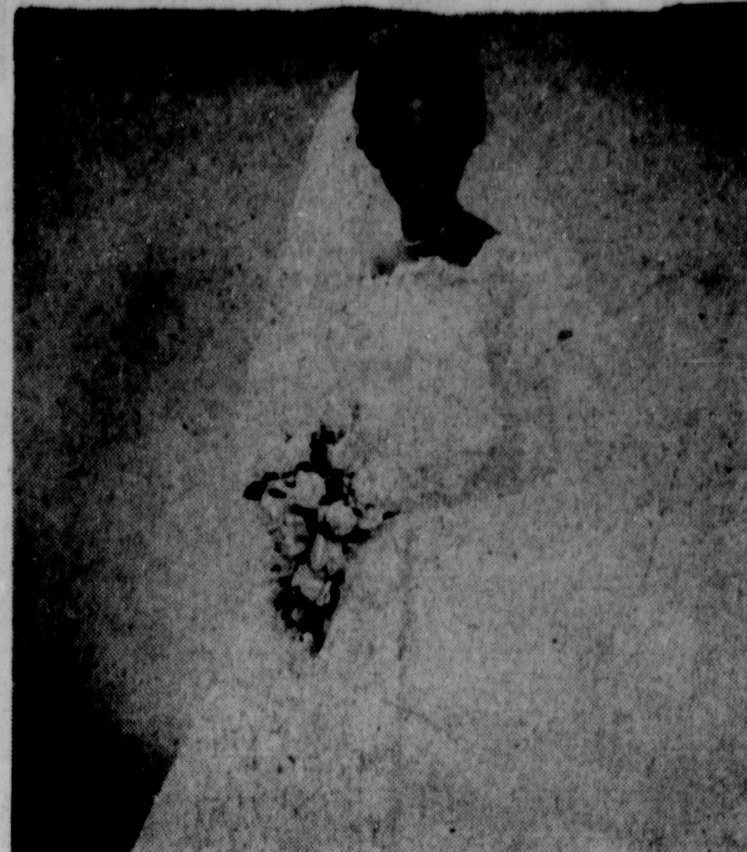

Serving his brother as best man will be Ron Hoffman, and the ushers will be Robert Chinnock of Hemingford, Virgil Meintz and Robert Thoman.

Lighted candles and arrangements of white pompons, chrysanthemums and gladioli appointed the altar of St. Thomas Aquinas Church where the marriage of Miss Mary Diann Cabela, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cabela of Chappell, to Lt. Don L. McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis McKenzie of Hebron, took place on Saturday morning, April 27. The Rev. J. Rawley Myers solemnized the 10 o'clock ceremony, and Mrs. Richard Neal Cabela played the wedding music.

Mrs. Gary Timlin of Denver, the matron of honor; Miss Janie Cabela of Chappell, who was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids Miss Diann Deitemeyer of Boulder, Colo.; Miss Judy Binney of Omaha, and Miss Donna Sue Wedberg, wore alike frocks of Copenhagen blue peau de soie, and they carried cascade bouquets of blue chrysanthemums and lavender florettes.

Stephen McKenzie of Scarsdale, N.Y., served as best man, and seating the guests were Roger Wiedel of Hebron; Claus Trimble of Omaha; Robin Snider and William Arledge, both of Denver.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white silk peau de soie. The sculptured bodice was designed with a bateau neckline patterned with Alencon lace re-embroidered with seed pearls which slipped into bracelet-length sleeves. The lace and pearl motif was repeated on the voluminous skirt which was completed with a chapel train. A Juliet cap of lace, etched with pearls, held in place her tiered veil, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids.

After a honeymoon trip to the Bahamas Lt. McKenzie will return to New Orleans where the bridegroom is stationed.

Husbands Honored Guests

The junior members of Deborah Avery Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, entertained their husbands on Friday evening at an informal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Moseman.

Included among those attending the annual event were (from the left) Mrs. W. D. Ray, new president of the junior group; Mrs. W. Griffith, chairman of the hostess committee; Mr. Ray; Mr. Moseman; Mrs. Mose-man, immediate past president; and Mr. Griffith.

Other new officers of the group are Mrs. Kenneth McCaw, vice president; Mrs. Charles Mulvaney, secretary; and Mrs. R. B. Stapleton, treasurer.

Plans, Parties For Brides-Elect

Honoring a May bride-elect next Thursday evening will be Miss Janet Morgan, Miss Gwen Marks, Miss Lois Hahn and Miss Lillian Delameter who will be co-hostesses at a party in courtesy to Miss Sharon Gustafson. A miscellaneous shower will be presented to Miss Gustafson during the informal evening in the parlors of the First Baptist Church-Southern.

Also honoring the bride-elect in the near future will be Mrs. Robert Carter, Miss Lynne Morian, Mrs. Dennis Craig, Mrs. Roger Silver and Miss Kathy Heckman, who will entertain at a shower on Sunday afternoon, at the home of Miss Morian.

The wedding of Miss Gustafson and A. L. John C. Munn of San Leandro, Calif., will take place on Saturday, May 18, at the First Baptist Church-Southern.

For her matron of honor, the bride-elect has chosen Mrs. Jon Jorgensen of North Platte, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Janet Morgan and Mrs. Robert Carter.

Mr. Munn, who is stationed at the Lincoln Air Force Base, has named Benjamin H. Brown to serve as his best man, and seating the guests for the 8 o'clock service will be Perry Preston, Roger Jones, Roger Gustafson, brother of the bride-to-be, and Gary Ram-penthal.

Planning a June wedding is Miss Cheryl Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Allen, who has announced that her marriage to John Kempston will take place on Saturday, June 15.

For the 8 o'clock evening service, to be solemnized in the chapel of St. Paul Methodist Church, the bride-to-be has named Miss Kathy Schilder as her maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Jennie Lutz and Miss Diane Hornby, and Miss Cathy Carver will be the flower girl. Carrying the

Dear Abby

Market Advice Is Risky

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My brother died three years ago and left his wife some stocks. She got into the habit of asking my advice on certain stocks. I made it plain I was NOT advising her; only telling her what I was doing with mine. She followed my moves. Like many others I sold some stocks I should have kept, and kept some stocks I should have sold. Every morning this sister-in-law calls me up and needles me about some stock she sold a while back which is now going up—or some stock she sold onto which is going down. I don't want to make an enemy of her, but I'd appreciate seeing this letter in print with your comments. If she reads is your column and the stock market.

NEEDED
DEAR NEEDED: Giving advice on the stock market is tricky and thankless. It's a business — loaded with traps, bulls and pigs.

DEAR ABBY: My mother always preaching to me about learning to cook. She says when she was my age she cooked dinner every night. So when I go into the kitchen to cook, she says, "Get out—you're in my way. You'll only make a mess!" bby, how am I supposed to learn if she is always saying this? I am almost 15.

WANTS TO LEARN
DEAR WANTS: Your timing is off. If you seem to be underfoot in the kitchen when your mother is, busy and hurried, all you'll cook your own goose. Wait 'til she's in a good mood and make an "appointment" with her.

DEAR ABBY: A nephew mine is being married on. My husband and I are not invited to the wedding because of a family rift that took place two years ago. The wedding is being held in the church we long to. I say there is no reason why we can't go to at church and see the wedding. If they don't like it, then try to throw us out. Of course, we wouldn't go the reception. My husband says we should not go to the church. I don't see why we should stay away from it's OUR church. What do you think?

NOT INVITED
DEAR NOT: If you want to go to your church to see a wedding — go. And if your husband wants to stay home without him.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to 'TRAGEDY'S' letter: I am approaching the age where I might have to make plans for my old age. Anything should happen to my husband, and my health could be such that I could live alone, I would not on going to a Rest home. I have wonderful children, but I wouldn't think of rupting their lives by living with any of them. I would rather have them come to see me because I want to than have them stuck with someone who could be hard to live with.

I know this relative meant well, but we are not interested in being "converted" and this paper seems to have that as its purpose. Should we let this relative continue sending it? Why Grow Old?

Help For The 'Roll'

Josephine Lowman

Asking a woman if she would like to look more attractive is like asking a fish if it likes to swim. And luckily, today there is an answer for practically every defect in beauty.

Of what does attractiveness consist? Let's list a few of the characteristics which make up a lovely you:

A good figure, with correct weight and measurements which are in beautiful ratio is certainly an asset. A clear complexion, good grooming, well cared for hair, and clever make-up are more happy ingredients. Last, but not least is beautiful posture. This adds such grace to the picture.

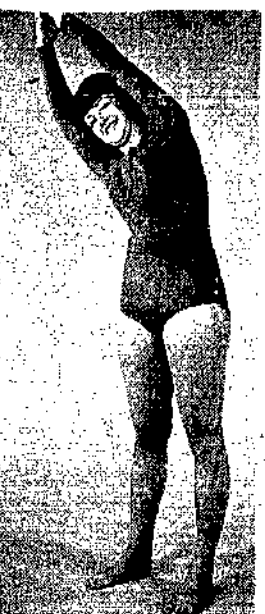

Perhaps modern standards demand more of us than those in the past, but if so, we have more weapons with which to fend off aging and to increase attractiveness.

We know that figure control depends on exercise and diet. We are aware of the importance of daily skin and hair care and we have, available, preparations for dry skin and oily skin and dry or oily scalp. We have all sorts of creams and stimulants and tonics and astringents and powders and mascaras and deodorants and depilatories which come to our aid.

We also know so much more about nutrition and the part it plays in good looks, and in vivacity and happiness.

So many women have charming figures with one exception. Many have a flat tummy and slim hips but are harassed by a roll over the girdle. If this is your difficulty try the following exercise.

Stand tall with your feet

Try this exercise to get rid of that "roll" over the girdle.

separated and your arms raised overhead. Clasp your hands together above your head. Keep your arms in this position throughout the exercise. Bend over at right angles to your upright body. Swing your trunk to the left as far as you can, pulling to the left with the hands. Now swing the trunk to the right, pulling to the right. Swing forward, raise your trunk and reach toward the ceiling. Continue. Do this exercise slowly and feel the pull.

If you would like to have my waist slimming exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 6 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

The bidding:

Pass 1NT 3♦ 4♦
Pass 4NT

Opening lead — four of hearts.

Incredible things sometimes happen at the bridge table, even in championship events. Look at this hand played last year in the match between Italy and the United States.

At the first table, with an American pair holding the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown.

South's notrump opening was unusual, but many players undoubtedly would have chosen the same bid. When the Italian West (Avarelli) overcalled with three spades, North bid four spades to show his void and a great interest in getting to a slam.

Obviously, North was asking his partner to select a trump suit, but South, for reasons unknown, bid four notrump, concealing his exceptionally fine diamonds. Probably North should not have passed at this point, but he did.

So South wound up in four notrump as a result of the odd auction. Avarelli found the killing opening lead, a heart, and East (Belladonna) took the ace and returned a spade.

Then came the deluge. Avarelli cashed eight spade tricks and declarer went down six! Six diamonds could not be defeated!

At the second table, the bidding followed more normal lines. Forquet and Garozzo now held the North-South hands for Italy. The bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♦	4♦	5♦
6♦	Pass	6♣	Dble

Forquet made a cuebid in spades at this table also, but it did him no good, since the American pair sacrificed profitably against the imminent diamond slam by contracting for six spades.

Forquet doubled, but all he could collect was 300 points. He cashed the A-K of clubs and continued with a club which dummy ruffed and Garozzo overruffed. Declarer then took the rest of the tricks.

So the outcome was that the Italians showed a plus of 300 points at each table once the pyrotechnics were over. It just goes to show that almost anything can happen when good friends get together.

Market Advice Is Risky

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My brother died three years ago and left his wife some stocks. She got into the habit of asking my advice on certain stocks. I made it plain I was NOT advising her, only telling her what I was doing with mine. She followed my moves. Like many others I sold some stocks I should have kept, and kept some stocks I should have sold. Every morning this sister-in-law calls me up and needles me about some stock she sold a while back which is now going up—or some stock she held onto which is going down. I don't want to make an enemy of her, but I'd appreciate seeing this letter in print with your comments. All she reads is your column and the stock market.

NEEDED
DEAR NEEDED: Giving advice on the stock market is tricky and thankless. It's a beastly business—loaded with bulls and pigs.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is always preaching to me about learning to cook. She says when she was my age she cooked dinner every night. So when I go into the kitchen to cook, she says, "Get out—you're in my way—You'll only make a mess!" Abby, how am I supposed to learn if she is always saying this? I am almost 15.

WANTS TO LEARN
DEAR WANTS: Your timing is off. If you seem to be underfoot in the kitchen when your mother is busy and hurried, all you'll cook is your own goose. Wait 'til she's in a good mood and then make an "appointment" with her.

DEAR ABBY: A nephew of mine is being married soon. My husband and I were not invited to the wedding because of a family fight that took place two years ago. The wedding is being held in the church we belong to. I say there is no reason why we can't go to that church and see the wedding. If they don't like it, let them try to throw us out. (Of course, we wouldn't go to the reception.) My husband says we should not go to the church. I don't see why we should stay away since it's OUR church. What do you think?

NOT INVITED
DEAR NOT: If you want to go to your church to see the wedding—go. And if your husband wants to stay home—go without him.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to OUTRAGED'S letter: I am fast approaching the age where I might have to make some plans for my old age. If anything should happen to my husband, and my health should be such that I could not live alone, I would insist on going to a Rest Home. I have wonderful children, but I wouldn't think of disrupting their lives by living with any of them. I would rather have them come to see me because they want to than have them stuck with someone who could be hard to live with.

DEAR ABBY: Last fall a distant relative of ours started sending us a religious paper. Our family is not of that religion and we do not enjoy reading it. I know this relative meant well, but we are not interested in being "converted" and this paper seems to have that as its purpose. Should we let this relative continue sending it? The paper must cost something and I'm sure the postage does. We just throw it away without even looking at it. Or should we write and tell him to quit sending it?

MINNIE-APPOLIS
DEAR MINNIE-APPOLIS: Write to your relative and tell him you appreciate his thoughtfulness—but you and your family are not interested in the paper so he shouldn't waste the time and money to send it.

Help For 'The Roll'

Josephine Lowman

Asking a woman if she would like to look more attractive is like asking a fish if it likes to swim. And luckily, today there is an answer for practically every defect in beauty.

Of what does attractiveness consist? Let's list a few of the characteristics which make up a lovely you:

A good figure, with correct weight and measurements which are in beautiful ratio is certainly an asset. A clear complexion, good grooming, well cared for hair, and clever make-up are more happy ingredients. Last, but not least is beautiful posture. This adds such grace to the picture.

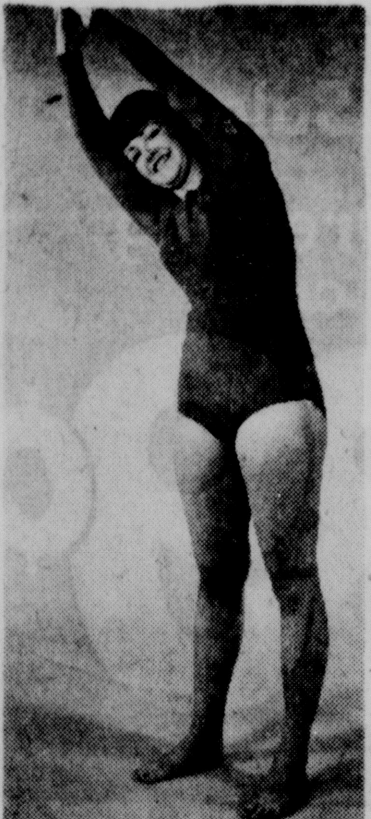

Perhaps modern standards demand more of us than those in the past, but if so, we have more weapons with which to fend off aging and to increase attractiveness.

We know that figure control depends on exercise and diet. We are aware of the importance of daily skin and hair care and we have, available, preparations for dry skin and oily skin and dry or oily scalp. We have all sorts of creams and stimulants and tonics and astringents and powders and mascaras and deodorants and depilatories which come to our aid.

We also know so much more about nutrition and the part it plays in good looks and in vivacity and happiness.

So many women have charming figures with one exception. Many have a flat tummy and slim hips but are harassed by a roll over the girdle. If this is your difficulty try the following exercise.

Stand tall with your feet

Try this exercise to get rid of that "roll" over the girdle.

separated and your arms raised overhead. Clasp your hands together above your head. Keep your arms in this position throughout the exercise. Bend over at right angles to your upright body. Swing your trunk to the left as far as you can, pulling to the left with the hands. Now swing the trunk to the right, pulling to the right. Swing forward, raise your trunk and reach toward the ceiling. Continue. Do this exercise slowly and feel the pull.

If you would like to have my waist slimming exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 6 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Opening lead — four of hearts.

Incredible things sometimes happen at the bridge table, even in championship events. Look at this hand played last year in the match between Italy and the United States.

At the first table, with an American pair holding the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown.

South's notrump opening was unusual, but many players undoubtedly would have chosen the same bid. When the Italian West (Avarelli) overcalled with three spades, North bid four spades to show his void and a great interest in getting to a slam.

Obviously, North was asking his partner to select a trump suit, but South, for reasons unknown, bid four notrump, concealing his exceptionally fine diamonds. Probably North should not have passed at this point, but he did.

So South wound up in four notrump as a result of the odd auction. Avarelli found the killing opening lead, a heart, and East (Belladonna) took the ace and returned a spade.

Then came the deluge. Avarelli cashed eight spade tricks and declarer went down six! Six diamonds could not be defeated!

At the second table, the bidding followed more normal lines. Forquet and Garozzo now held the North-South hands for Italy. The bidding went:

East South West North
Pass 1♦ 4♠ 5♠
6♥ Pass 6♠ Dble

Forquet made a cuebid in spades at this table also, but it did him no good, since the American pair sacrificed profitably against the imminent diamond slam by contracting for six spades.

Forquet doubled, but all he could collect was 300 points. He cashed the A-K of clubs and continued with a club which dummy ruffed and Garozzo overruffed. Declarer then took the rest of the tricks.

So the outcome was that the Italians showed a plus of 300 points at each table once the pyrotechnics were over. It just goes to show that almost anything can happen when good friends get together.

Rocky To Marry During May

... ACCORDING TO TABLOID N.Y. 'MIRROR'

New York (AP) — The New York Mirror said Sunday night it has learned that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and divorcee Margaretta (Happy) Fidler Murphy will marry next month.

In a copyrighted story, the Mirror quoted an unnamed friend of the Rockefeller family as saying:

"The date will be Saturday, May 18, or Sunday, May 19. The ceremony will be performed at a Protestant Episcopal church — but not the one where Rockefeller usually worships, the Riverside Church on Riverside Drive. (The Riverside church is interdenominational.)"

"It will be within New York State, but outside the city."

Robert McManus, press secretary to the governor, declined comment on the published report.

The Mirror quoted the Rockefeller family friend as saying only 25 to 50 close relatives of the couple will attend the wedding — including the governor's children, his brothers, Mrs. George E. Barlow Jr. of Wynnewood, suburban Philadelphia, and her cousin, Mrs. Peter Iselin, of New York City.

The Mirror pictured the friend as scoffing at reports of a hastily arranged big wedding this weekend and as saying:

"Rockefeller has too much respect for his ex-wife and his children to go through with a lot of fanfare, and so has Mrs. Murphy. They just wouldn't do it that way. There will be just the quiet ceremony and no reception."

"Possibly the friends and family who attend will have a champagne party — but the bride and groom won't stay for it. They will ship out immediately after the ceremony and hop aboard a plane for Europe."

Nine Churches Admit Negroes To Services

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI) — Groups of Negroes carrying printed cards saying "We Come in a Spirit of Love" visited 39 churches in this racially troubled city Sunday. They were accepted at 9.

The Negroes arrived in small groups of 3 or 4 at regular morning services. Each presented the pastor of the churches with a small card and asked to be admitted.

The card read "We come in a spirit of love and in the name of Him who taught us to say 'Our Father'."

At most places, they were turned away and quietly left. But at 9 churches, they were escorted inside and directed to pews.

The racial demonstrations against the city's segregation laws continued. Forty-six persons were arrested Saturday while picketing a downtown department store and charged with parading without a permit.

The arrests boosted to more than 400 the number that have been arrested in 26 days of demonstrations here.

The Negroes, who have directed their protests mostly at voter registration officials and downtown merchants so far, hinted they may broaden the scope of their campaign.

Call On Firm

A spokesman for the Negro leadership said representatives would call on the Birmingham Transit Company Monday to ask that the firm hire Negroes as drivers.

The financially shaky company, which resumed work Saturday after a strike by employees for higher wages, would face a possible boycott by Negroes if they don't meet the demands, a Negro spokesman indicated.

"The Negroes need buses more than the whites, but they need jobs too," the spokesman said.

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Sunday that if the United States acts militarily to stop a communist takeover of Laos, it should attack the Red supply depot at Hanoi in North Viet Nam.

Symington said he had no doubt the United States would be able to destroy the communist supply center in North Viet Nam without the danger of war with Red China.

Symington said on a television interview (Meet the Press-NBC) that the Red Chinese might send planes against a U.S. attack on the North Viet Nam capital at Hanoi. "But I don't think they'd want to tangle with the United States" in a major conflict he said.

No Troops

The Missouri Democrat, a member of both the Senate

Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, said unfavorable strategic circumstances in Laos dictated against sending U.S. troops into Laos to stop communist advances there.

He said the real difficulty in Laos was caused by the ability of the communists to use men and supplies into the southeast Asian nation from North Viet Nam.

"The place to stop it is Hanoi," he said. "We ought to notify the North Viet Name that we are tired of their infiltrating, and if they don't cut it out we'll destroy their marshaling yards in Hanoi," Symington said.

As for how the attack should take place, Symington said the United States could "either bomb it or go into Hanoi." He did not elaborate on what he meant by going into Hanoi, but presumably he meant use of U.S. troops in Hanoi.

Avoid War

Asked if he thought the United States could "get away with this" without escalation into war with China, Symington said the Red Chinese might be "upset" but he had no doubt that war could be avoided.

Symington said he did not believe partition of Laos into communist and non-communist sections — if it were tried — would last. He said the communists are determined to take over Laos "as soon as they can."

Symington declined to criticize the Kennedy administration for attempting to neutralize Laos through the Geneva accord last year. He said he was "all for negotiation, but I don't think we're going to back this thing by signing treaties with these people." He said the communists always violate treaties when it is to their advantage to do so.

'Air Bases In Turkey Important'

Izmit, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert said Sunday American air bases in Turkey would remain important as an adjunct to Polaris submarines being sent to the Mediterranean.

Zuckert is touring No. 14 Atlantic Treaty Organization and American military bases near the Aegean seaport.

There are 15 Jupiter in Turkey and 30 in Italy being replaced by Polaris carrying nuclear submarines assigned to the Mediterranean, he said.

"As long as we have mixed forces I think the air bases will have the same importance."

He emphasized, "We have no combat troops in Turkey, just support troops," and added "The eastern Mediterranean is an important part of the world and we appreciate the opportunity to train our aircraft crews here."

3-Year-Old Gives Cops Tough Time

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — He was only 3, but Phoenix police found him the toughest subject they had questioned in some time.

"What's your name, Sonny?" asked the desk sergeant. "Baloney," declared the youngster.

"Aw, cmon," the sergeant pleaded. "What's your real name?"

"Baloney" was the reply again.

Bribes didn't work either. The boy ate a candy bar and still refused to change his story.

A short time later a woman called asking if police would help find her lost son.

What's his name, mamam? an officer asked.

"Baloney," replied the woman.

Mrs. Fred Daley of Phoenix went on to explain that the boy's real name is Fred Daley Jr., but everyone calls him "Baloney."

Patrolman Jim Humphrey had picked up the apparently lost boy at a Phoenix service station.

Javits Asks JFK If Hands Tied On Cuba

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., called on President Kennedy Sunday to tell the nation if his hands are tied through any commitment with Russia on U.S. action toward Cuba.

The New York Republican said that if Kennedy's hands are tied because of an agreement with Premier Nikita Khrushchev the President should say what the hands are.

"If his hands are perfectly free we should know it," Javits said during a New York television program.

Javits also recommended that all channels of communication between Cuba and other American states be cut off. He said it would need the cooperation of Canada and Europe to block off the island and especially the "two-way" traffic which leads to subversion and infiltration.

Hair Spray Is Stolen; Worth Fourth Million

Stamford, Conn. (AP) — A tractor trailer truck loaded with an estimated $500,000 in hair spray products was stolen from a garage Sunday, police said.

Police said the vehicle was taken from the Williamson truck terminal on Lenox Avenue. The keys had been left in the ignition, they said.

The truck contained a new hair product produced by the Clairol Co. of Stamford.

Police said they have notified the FBI and state police to spread a diagonal over area highways for the truck.

Company officials could not be reached for comment. But police reported the trucking firm as saying the goods had a wholesale value of $250,000.

The goods had been picked up at the plant and were scheduled to be delivered to a local warehouse Monday.

Holdup Victim Is Discharged From St. Elizabeth

William Neylon, 76-year-old liquor store clerk who was wounded in a holdup Friday night, has been released from St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Neylon was wounded in the left forearm when he resisted a gunman robbing Bonded Liquors at 2365 O.

The man accused of the robbery and shooting, Robert L. Ferraro, 35, of St. Paul, Minn. faces a preliminary hearing on two charges Tuesday afternoon in Lancaster County Court.

Ferraro is charged with robbery and shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim. He was arrested minutes after the robbery about 4 blocks from the liquor store.

Jail Woman For Knifing Husband

A 33-year-old Lincoln woman was jailed Sunday after admitting stabbing her husband in the stomach with a knife, police said.

The husband was treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital and released. Six stitches were required to close the wound, police said.

Police said the wife told them she stabbed her husband while he was "heating" her.

Burglar Sought

Police Sunday were looking for someone who broke into the Highway Cafe 2049 O, and took $118 worth of cigarettes and food. Reported stolen were 20 cartons of cigarettes, 25 packages of frozen meat, and three chickens, one ham and 3 dozen eggs.

New York Reader Wants Advice On 'No Load' Funds

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

A professional man—a reader in New York—writes "please advise what is a 'no load' fund and in what way does it differ from regular funds. Please name brokers who handle them."

A number of other readers have asked similar questions.

The only structural way in which "no load" funds differ from other open end mutual funds lies in the fact that they can be purchased at current net asset value without any surcharge or "load" added for advertising and selling expenses. For the most part these "no load" funds are handled as a byproduct by professional investment management firms. One motive of the sponsors is to have a package for taking care of the friends and relatives of clients whose investment portfolios are not large enough to pay for the minimum annual counseling fee.

It would not be realistic to say that the "load" and "no load" funds are identical. For each fund must be judged by the knowledge and competence of the supervising management. In addition funds differ as to objectives. Some stress capital gains (profits), whereas others emphasize income. Some are widely diversified as to industries, whereas others specialize as, for example, in life insurance securities or in European issues. Some are invested primarily in common shares, whereas others constitute balanced investment funds, with bonds and preferred stock as well as common shares.

Life brings change, and the investor who holds well managed shares today, should keep in touch to judge whether the management continues good in the future as shifts in personnel inevitably take place. The new buyer in making an initial selection must be guided by the record of past performance of funds. This can be gleaned from the standard manuals, such as Wiesenberger's "Investment Companies," which can be purchased for twenty dollars or consulted in the library of a bank or investment company.

These financial packages of convenience provide automatic diversification and continuous professional supervisory management and are especially suited for unsophisticated investors. When such funds and closed end investment companies are acquired on a systematic, periodic basis through "dollar averaging," they provide a mechanism for building a personal estate. Another sensible approach is to buy Common Trust Funds operated by the trust department of banks and trust companies. With chronic federal budgetary deficits, it is laudable to put all your eggs in a single basket of fixed dollar investments consisting solely of bonds, mortgages and savings deposits.

In a world characterized by change, there are no absolutely "riskless investments," but participation in well managed funds is a prudent procedure.

The "no load" funds and the Common Trust Funds cannot be bought through brokers, but must be obtained

Symington: U.S. Should Attack Hanoi

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Sunday that if the United States acts militarily to stop a communist takeover of Laos, it should attack the Red supply depot at Hanoi in North Viet Nam.

Symington said he had no doubt the United States would be able to destroy the communist supply center in North Viet Nam without the danger of war with Red China.

Symington said on a television interview (Meet the Press-NBC) that the Red Chinese might send planes against a U.S. attack on the North Viet Nam capital at Hanoi. "But I don't think they'd want to tangle with the United States" in a major conflict, he said.

No Troops
The Missouri Democrat, a member of both the Senate

Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, said unfavorable strategic circumstances in Laos dictated against sending U.S. troops into Laos to stop communist advances there.

He said the real difficulty in Laos was caused by the ability of the communists to run men and supplies into the southeast Asian nation from North Viet Nam.

"The place to stop it is Hanoi," he said. "We ought to notify the North Viet Namese that we are tired of their infiltrating, and if they don't cut it out we'll destroy their marshalling yards in Hanoi," Symington said.

As for how the attack should take place, Symington said the United States could "either bomb it or go into Hanoi." He did not elaborate on what he meant by going into Hanoi, but presumably he meant use of U.S. troops in Hanoi.

Avoid War
Asked if he thought the United States could "get away with this" without escalation into war with China, Symington said the Red Chinese might be "upset" but he

'Air Bases In Turkey Important'

Izmir, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert said Sunday American air bases in Turkey would remain important as an adjunct to Polaris submarines being sent to the Mediterranean.

Zuckert is touring North Atlantic Treaty Organization and American military bases near the Aegean seaport.

There are 15 Jupiters in Turkey and 30 in Italy being replaced by Polaris-carrying nuclear submarines assigned to the Mediterranean, but Zuckert said, "As long as we have mixed forces I think the air bases will have the same importance."

He emphasized, "We have no combat troops in Turkey, just support troops," and added: "The eastern Mediterranean is an important part of the world and we appreciate the opportunity to train our aircraft and crews here."

had no doubt that war could be avoided.

Symington said he did not believe partition of Laos into communist and non-communistic — if it were tried — would last. He said the communists are determined to take over Laos "as soon as they can."

Symington declined to criticize the Kennedy administration for attempting to neutralize Laos through the Geneva accord last year. He said he was "all for negotiation, but I don't think we're going to lick this thing by signing treaties with these people." He said the communists always violate treaties when it is to their advantage to do so.

3-Year-Old Gives Cops Tough Time

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — He was only 3, but Phoenix police found him the toughest subject they had questioned in some time.

"What's your name, Sonny?" asked the desk sergeant. "Baloney!" declared the youngster.

"Aw, cmon," the sergeant pleaded. "What's your real name?"

"Baloney," was the reply again.

Bribes didn't work either. The boy ate a candy bar and still refused to change his story.

A short time later a woman called, asking if police would help find her lost son.

"What's his name, ma'am?" an officer asked. "Baloney," replied the woman.

Mrs. Fred Daley of Phoenix went on to explain that the boy's real name is Fred Daley Jr., but everyone calls him "Baloney."

Patrolman Jim Humphrey had picked up the apparently lost boy at a Phoenix service station.

Car-Pedestrian Accident Injures Lincoln Woman

Harriet Hoagland, 69, of 1545 Washington was listed in good condition at Lincoln General Hospital following a car-pedestrian accident at 16th and Washington Sunday afternoon.

Officer Mark Rogers identified the driver of the car as Margaret Haar, 19, of 1501 Washington.

Rogers said apparently Mrs. Hoagland walked into the front fender of the vehicle.

Woman Slightly Hurt In Two-Car Collision

A two-car collision at the intersection of 13th and D Sunday morning slightly injured a 31-year-old Lincoln woman.

Police identified her as Beverly Ashley of 1126 So. 15th. Officers said she received minor bruises and told them she would see a private doctor.

Police said the driver of the other car was Kenneth D. Chilen, 17, of 1900 So. 52nd. Chilen was not injured.

Police Sunday were looking for someone who broke into the Highway Cafe, 2049 O., and took $118 worth of cigars and food. Reported stolen were 20 cartons of cigarettes, 25 packages of frozen meat, two fresh chickens, one ham and 3 dozen eggs.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

New York Reader Wants Advice On 'No Load' Funds

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

A professional man—a reader in New York—writes: "Please advise what is a 'no load fund' and in what way does it differ from regular funds. Please name brokers who handle them." A number of other readers have asked similar questions.

The only structural way in which "no load" funds differ from other open end mutual funds lies in the fact that they can be purchased at current net asset value without any surcharge or "load" added for advertising and selling expenses. For the most part these "no load" funds are handled as a byproduct by professional investment management firms. One motive of the sponsors is to have a package for taking care of the friends and relatives of clients whose investment portfolios are not large enough to pay for the minimum annual counselling fee.

It would not be realistic to say that the "load" and "no load" firms are identical. For each fund must be judged by the knowledge and competence of the supervising management. In addition, funds differ as to objectives. Some stress capital gains (profits), whereas others emphasize income. Some are widely diversified as to industries, whereas others specialize, as, for example, in life insurance securities or in European issues. Some are invested primarily in common shares, whereas others constitute balanced investment funds, with bonds and preferred stock as well as common shares.

Life brings change, and the investor, who holds well managed shares today, should keep in touch to judge whether the management continues good in the future as shifts in personnel inevitably take place. The new buyer in making an initial selection must be guided by the record or past performance of funds. This can be gleaned from the standard manuals, such as Wiesenberger's "Investment Companies," which can be purchased for twenty dollars or consulted in the library of a bank or investment company.

Convenient Packages
These financial packages of convenience provide a automatic diversification and continuous professional supervisory management and are especially suited for unsophisticated investors. When such funds and closed end investment companies are acquired on a systematic, periodic basis through "dollar averaging," they provide a mechanism for building a personal estate. Another sensible approach is to buy Common Trust Funds operated by the trust department of banks and trust companies. With chronic federal budgetary deficits, it is lopsided to put all your eggs in a single basket of fixed dollar investments consisting solely of bonds, mortgages and savings deposits.

In a world characterized by change, there are no absolutely "riskless investments," but participation in well managed funds is a prudent procedure.

The "no load" funds and the Common Trust Funds cannot be bought through brokers, but may be obtained directly from the sponsors. The sponsors, who make no charge for selling expenses, are not philanthropists, but get a payoff through annual fees for investment management. The "load" funds similarly pay for investment supervision.

Many long term holders have done well through the years with well managed "load" funds. The "load", however, is a burden for in and out investors. But once the "load" has been paid, there is no advantage in switching automatically into a "no load" fund. In any circumstances, there is no assurance that the "no load" fund will be worth more in 10 or more years than the "load" fund. This depends on the market behavior of the securities carried in the portfolio of the fund.

There is little public discussion of the "no load" funds because for the most part they have set aside no appropriation for merchandising. The economy results from action on the initiative of the buyer. In connection with Common Trust Funds, rigid prohibitions under Federal Reserve rules deter sponsoring banks and trust companies from conducting sales ballyhoo.

Another Avenue
Still another avenue is the setting up of individual revocable living trusts with a fiduciary institution (a bank or trust company). These trusts can be tied with a will to be transformed into testamentary trusts for the benefit of surviving heirs.

On request, a list of "no load" funds will be sent to readers, who ask for them enclosing stamped, self addressed envelopes.

Q. A reader in La Mesa, California, with assets of $65,000, including cash, bonds and savings, asks how much net will be available for his widow, after payment of taxes, probate costs and attorneys fees.

A. This man should get a competent attorney to draw up a will taking advantage of the marital split, which exempts half the estate from a death duty. If, as seems unlikely, the estate remains frozen permanently at this level, the $60,000 exemption provided by the federal estate tax law would make federal death duties minimal. In numerous states, there is a state tax on small estates. The attorney's fees in settling an estate are subject to negotiation, with a ceiling set by state law. The probate fees for a small estate should be negligible. The reader does not list among his assets any insurance. Life insurance proceeds are included in the total estate. If the husband has no life insurance, he should take some out, and he should also protect himself and his spouse with hospitalization, major medical, and adequate property insurance coverage.

Q. A reader in Sanatorium, Texas, on the verge of semi-retirement asks whether to sell his substantial holdings of Massachusetts Investment Trust and put the proceeds in California savings and loan associations which pay 4.8%.

A. This inquirer does not reveal whether he has any heirs to protect. If not, he could get a bigger assured income from a nonrefund annuity with a life insurance company, which would pay him a guaranteed monthly income for life. Since the reader holds a well managed mutual fund, on which he may be subject to a capital gains tax, he should not throw it overboard thoughtlessly. If he does not wish to assume too much risk of price fluctuations in equities, he could put a portion of the proceeds in insured savings deposits (up to $10,000 in each institution) or in an annuity.

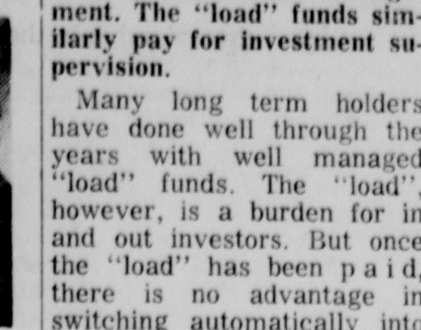

One consideration would be whether he needs to enlarge his current investment income, even at the expense of sacrificing possible future appreciation. The second is the risk of future inflation or rise in the cost of living. The mutual fund is a better inflation hedge than the fixed dollar commitment. But there is no objection to dividing the fund in order to increase the safety factor. This problem is discussed in greater depth in my paperback book "The Kennedy Recession."

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with self-addressed, stamped envelopes should be sent in care of the Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.)

Agreement On Telephone Pact Reached

New York (AP) — Western Electric Co. announced agreement on a new contract for 17,500 phone equipment installers in 44 states.

The pact, reached Thursday night with negotiators for the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO, is subject to ratification by union members.

A company spokesman said the contract grants basic wage increases of from 7 to 14 cents hourly and changes in the general wage structure. The structure changes will give some employees boosts totalling up to 41 cents.

Goldwater Draft Hearings Tide

By JACK BELL
Washington (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., appears Sunday to be nearing the point of no return in a tide of developments carrying him toward a contest for nomination.

Goldwater, a spokesman for Republican conservatives, is on the record with an assortment of disclaimers that he has any ambition to obtain the nomination or that he wants the job of being president, even if he could get it.

But despite the Arizona senator's repeated insistence that he has no intention of seeking any office other than reelection to the Senate next year, an emotional surge of support for him has gained such proportions that the presidential contest decision may be taken out of his hands.

Goldwater won't concede this has happened yet. But he said in an interview: "I realize this thing is a sort of a forest fire that you can't stamp out with your feet. But I am not running for anything except reelection to the Senate."

Arizona's primary, in which he expects to seek renomination, is not until September 1964, certainly several weeks after the GOP national convention has picked its nominee.

The surge for the senator as a possible nominee has followed a geographical pattern, spreading from a well solidified position in the South to the Midwest and to some areas of the Far West.

These are the areas Goldwater says could supply the necessary electoral votes to defeat President Kennedy. It remains to be seen whether a majority of convention delegates will agree to write off New York and the other large industrial states for such an experiment.

The popularity among Republican regulars of Goldwater's conservative stance has been demonstrated by the rash of draft movements that has broken out in these regions. The senator gives the enthusiasts involved no outward cooperation. But he has quit trying to halt them.

Four Hurt When Auto Hits Crane

Four persons; two of Valparaiso and two of Prague, were treated at St. Elizabeth Hospital and released following an accident on U.S. 34 at the entrance to Municipal Airport early Sunday.

Police identified the injured as Joe G. Varana, 31, and his wife, Margaret, 27, of Prague and Frank E. Furnacek, 39, and his wife, Marcella, 34, of Valparaiso.

Officers said the car, driven by Varana, was northbound when it collided with a heavy-duty crane. They said the crane was parked in an area surrounded by reflective-type saw-horses when the Varana car slid 126 feet and collided with it.

The crane was owned by the city of Valparaiso.

The surge for the senator as a possible nominee has followed a geographical pattern, spreading from a well solidified position in the South

IT CAN'T HAPPEN HERE

...and it hasn't yet. This mushroom cloud over Mechanicsburg, Pa., was caused by an explosion after a freight train on the Reading Railroad derailed there Sunday. Fire in propane tank cars spread to a chemical tank car, which blew up, causing the mushroom. No one was badly hurt.

Raiders Attack Malaysian Police

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia (AP)—Armed raiders attacked Tebedu police station in Sarawak near the Indonesian-Borneo border, Radio Malaya reported Sunday.

British security forces returned fire during the 15-minute gun battle. There were no known casualties.

The raiders were not identified, but were believed associated with elements that staged an anti-British revolt last December against the proposed Malaysia Federation.

On April 12, an armed band of 60 men overran the same police station, 37 miles south of Kuching and 3 miles from the Indonesian border. They killed one constable and wounded two others before fleeing with a quantity of arms, presumably back toward the Indonesian border.

Cholera Killer

Geneva (AP)—Cholera remains the main killer in diseases subject to international quarantine, the World Health Organization reports. Cholera deaths in 1960 totaled 11,216. This was a big drop, however, from 130,481 cholera deaths in 1950.

Britain Might Duplicate U.S. Security Methods

London (AP)—With spy jitters running high in Britain, word spread Sunday that the British may have to adopt American-style security techniques before getting Polaris rockets from the United States.

Loopholes in the present security setup here were spotlighted in a blaze of publicity emanating from a government tribunal investigating espionage at the admiralty.

The tribunal was charged with investigating how John William Vassall, a homosexual clerk at the Admiralty, managed to work undetected for 7 years as a spy for the Russians.

The shock came with the tribunal's finding that, under the existing security system, blame could not be specifically fixed for the failure to spot Vassall.

The Vassall case came on the heels of other spy scandals at the Admiralty. And the tribunal's findings were published at a time when the Admiralty is preparing to take U.S. Polaris secrets under its wing.

In the Nassau agreement between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan last December, the United States contracted to sell Polaris missiles to Britain. But a strict security provision was tacked on.

This called on Britain to give Polaris secrets "substantially the same degree of protection afforded by the Government of the United States."

Present British procedures differ substantially from the American system. A major difference is in the field of thoroughly investigating people given top secret jobs.

As the Vassall tribunal revealed, British security officials do not insist on the degree of investigation employed by their American counterparts, who conduct exhaustive inquiries into the background of anyone to be entrusted with secrets.

The Sunday Telegraph reported that stringent new rules have been issued by the Foreign Office to check espionage activity carried out by Communist diplomats in Britain.

rarely and appeared inattentive at times.

And although he credited the Russian Revolution with making possible his own rise to power, he added pointedly: "This does not mean that the Soviet Union made this (Cuban) revolution."

Like Castro, the gigantic official reception generated less excitement than expected. The Red Square crowd was not nearly so animated as the throngs that greeted the Soviet cosmonauts, the only other persons who have received Red Square receptions recently.

Soviets Launch Cosmos Satellite

Moscow (AP)—The Soviet Union launched Cosmos 16 Sunday in its series of earth satellites carrying scientific instruments into orbit. The launching appeared timed for Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's visit to Moscow.

Radio Moscow announced the launching while the Cuban leader was flying from Murnansk en route to a giant rally in Red Square.

The broadcast said the satellite was functioning normally. The last Soviet satellite launched was April 22, when Cosmos 15 went into orbit. The current Cosmos series was first announced March 16, 1962.

The news agency Tass reported that Cosmos 16 carries "scientific instrumentation designed for continuing space research."

The West German satellite tracking station said Sunday that the Soviet Union apparently launched two satellites Sunday.

The Soviet Union announced only one launching, Cosmos 16.

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

The average worker loses about 5 1/2 days a year because of injury or illness.

To your public interest in the field of safety, the Post Office has put a bold-face design on air-mail cards.

Nearly 251 million passenger-car repair jobs are undertaken each year by the nation's automotive service garages.

Canadian farms, like their U.S. counterparts, are getting fewer, bigger and more efficient.

Some indication of the tourist boom in Hong Kong can be inferred from the rise in hotel accommodations. From 400 rooms in 1955 the total will reach 6,000 by mid-1963.

Here's How To Work It

ANY OLBAAXE IS LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this example, A is used for the three U.S. for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your name. If the number of letters is 0 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right, then down the rectangle. The letters under the checked figures spell your fortune. © King Features Inc. Registered U.S. Patent Office.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
